DEVASTATING ASSAULT MADE ON NORWEGIAN HARBOR

R.A.F. Ship Attack Greatest Yet

7 Vessels Are Sunk Or Damaged

LONDON, Oct. 30.—(CP)—The air ministry said today the R.A.F. carried out "the most devastating shipping attack ever made by a single squadron" when British planes blasted Aalesund harbor in Norway last night, sinking or damaging seven ships.

The results of the low level attack on one of the most important bases from which the Germans supply the northern Russian front was listed by the air ministry as:

"Four supply ships sunk or left sinking, one ship left in flames, the superstructure and upper deck of a sixth ship blown into the air and an escort vessel of the corvette type severely damaged by bombs.

An eighth Axis ship—a supply vessel—was reported hit off Stadlandet, a peninsula south of Aalesund.

Other planes bombed a fish oil factory and docks at Bergen, Norway, the communique said. Britons say the Germans are using fish oil in war industries.

An earlier communique said British bombers also attacked the German naval base at the occupied French port of Brest during the night.

Only one German plane was said to have ventured over the British shore and a communique said it caused neither casualties nor damage

Many bombs were seen to burst across the Brest docks, the air ministry said, announcing all but one British plane returned from the overnight forays which included a sweep over German air bases in the occupied low countries.

'Black Phantom' Raiders Strike Terror In Nazis

By JOHN PARRIS

LONDON, Oct. 30.—(BUP)—A Free French spokesman reported today that mysterious "Black Phantom" raiding units are snatching German sentries from their posts on the Nazi-occupied French coast almost every night and creating among the Germans a "horrible fear" of an Allied invasion.

EXCLUSIVE

The spokesman's disclosures followed reports by the Moscow radio that British and Canadian soldiers (presumably of the specially-trained Commando assault forces) had landed in France recently and made raids in the neighborhood of Amiens.

The raids have forced the Germans to redouble their coastal patrols, the spokesman said, while information received in London "shows that French resistance is increasing" despite the repressive measures taken by the German occupation authorities.

Censorship does not permit reports regarding the Commando units, which aroused great interest in connection with public demands for a British invasion of western Europe in order to aid the Russians by opening a second front.

The French spokesman, however, discussed the reported raids and said the Royal Air Force bombings of occupied France had practically wiped out the textile industry in the Norde section.

Reports from France, he said, told of mysterious figures that appear almost every night on the beaches to raid German sentry posts or

Nazis Forced Back Across Nara

By The Canadian Press

Russia's armies were credited in front-line dispatches today with throwing the Germans back across the Nara river some 50 miles southwest of Moscow, while on the southern front, Soviet troops were declared to have won strategic heights guarding the route to Rostov-on-Don.

Tass, Russian news agency, said the Germans tried repeatedly to cross the Nara but were beaten back.

Counter-attacking Soviet troops then stormed across the river, Tass said, and entrenched themselves on the south bank under heavy fire.

BIG MOSCOW RAID

Slowed down in their land offensive against Moscow, the Germans sent more than 300 planes in a mass assault on the U.S.S.R. capital yesterday, the Soviet radio said. Big-scale aerial attacks on Moscow have been under way for several days, it was reported.

Hitler's high command, silent on operations around Moscow, claimed German troops were now swarming into the upper Donets river industrial basin on a broad front.

On the lower reaches of the Donets, however, the Russians said they had stopped the Nazi on-

Nominated

Margaret Crang, former alderman, who was nominated Wednesday by the Civic Progressive Association to complete the association's slate of three candidates to contest the aldermanic board vacancies in the November 12 municipal election.

Margaret Crang Named Fill Aldermanic Slate Civic Progressive Body

Edmonton's Civic Progressive Association at a meeting held Wednesday evening at the I.O.O.F. hall, 103 street, nominated Miss Margaret Crang to complete its slate of three to contest the aldermanic vacancies. Miss Crang, a lawyer and former Labor alderman, will run as a South Side candidate.

Other aldermanic candidates nominated by the Civic Progressive group are: Ex-alderman Guy Patterson, K.C., and Mrs. Gwendolen A. Clarke, widow of the late Joseph A. Clarke, K.C., former mayor of the city. They were nominated several days ago.

The meeting decided also to refrain from contesting the mayoralty, and will not nominate candidates to contest the public school board vacancies.

MAY SUPPORT LABOR

While no tacit agreement has been reached between the Civic Progressive Association and the Canadian Labor Party for joint action of those opposing the Citizens' Committee nominees, the Civic Progressive Association only nominated three aldermanic candidates and left it open to their followers to support the two Canadian Labor Party nominees for the aldermanic board, H. D. Ainlay, former alderman, and W. H. O'Neill, and William Tree for school board. Mr. Ainlay is running as a South Side candidate.

About 60 persons attended the meeting and considerable discussion took place on organization of the election campaign. Following the discussion it was decided to set up a committee to draft the association's campaign platform. This committee will have power to set up organization, finance and campaign committees.

COMMITTEE MEMBERS

Members of the committee are: Lloyd Jones, E. C. Fisher, David Duncan, Mrs. V. P. Crowe, A. R. McKay, Mrs. Gifford, Stanley Gee, A. Fowlie, Dr. C. B. Willis, Guy Patterson, K.C., Miss Margaret Crang, Mrs. Gwendolen A. Clarke and John Polonuk.

This committee will meet Thursday evening to draft the election platform.

After some discussion the committee was instructed by the meeting to approach the Canadian Labor Party executive with a view to co-ordinating the election effort of both groups to the best advantage of the candidates opposed to the Citizens' Committee.

Only two names were submitted

By B. T. RICHARDSON
Edmonton Bulletin Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA, Oct. 30—Dr. W. H. Cook, a graduate of the University of Alberta, has been appointed director of the division of biology and agriculture of the National Research Council, Hon. James A. MacKinnon, minister of trade and commerce, announced Wednesday, Dr. Cook succeeds Dr. Robert Newton, president of the University of Alberta, in the National Research Council post. He has been acting director of the division since July, 1940.

Dr W. H. Cook was graduated from the University of Alberta in 1926 with the degree of B.Sc. in agriculture and in 1928 he obtained his master of science degree, also at this university.

He did research work in 1929-30 with Dr. Robert Newton at Leland Stanford University, California, and obtained his Ph.D. degree there in 1931 from that university. The research work for his doctor's degree was done at the Alberta university.

In 1930 he was appointed to the permanent staff of the National Research Council on Dr. Newton's recommendation and, while at the Alberta university he worked on wheat, studying the use of chemicals for wheat control and wheat drying.

In recent years he has been in charge of the special laboratory on transport and storage of foods and developed a system of temporary refrigeration in ships' holds for shipments of bacon, which he designed and installed.

For the past seven or eight years he has been working on the preservation and curing of meat products

Dr. Cook has had published many scientific papers.

Sheppard Will Contest Vote

Rice Sheppard, veteran campaigner in civic elections and former alderman, has again thrown his hat in the ring as an Independent candidate for one of the two vacant aldermanic seats on the South Side.

Mr. Sheppard made the following statement to the press Thursday: "As the South Side is entitled to two aldermen in the forthcoming civic election and there seems to be some difficulty in finding suitable candidates, I have decided at the request of many of my supporters to offer my services to the city for another term, running as an Independent.

"My many years of experience on council and my record should, my supporters feel, assure my victory at the polls."

Protest Made City Workers Missing Bonus

Protest against the exclusion of municipal employees from the provisions of the federal government's cost of living policy was sent Thursday to Hon. Norman McLarty, minister of labor, by the Alberta Federation of Labor.

Text of the telegram sent to Hon. Mr. McLarty follows: "Alberta Federation of Labor desire to protest against exclusion of municipal employees from mandatory provisions in cost of living policy Strongly urge reconsideration as municipal services in this province are highly industrialized and operate power plants, street railway systems, telephone, electric light and water services."

FORGOTTEN GROUPS

Speaking on behalf of municipal employees and the other smaller groups of labor excluded from the provisions of the cost of living policy, Mr. Farmilo said that "if the Dominion government, as it has so intimated, has determined inflation must be prevented and has devised the cost of living bonus to curb this inflation, then the more general and the wider that principle applies the more effective will be the restrictive results."

He said that "officers and membership of the Alberta Federation of Labor were at a loss to understand why the cost of living bonus policy was not made applicable to all workers and wage-earners."

MAY CAUSE UNREST

Mr. Farmilo termed the exclusion of municipal employees and other groups of wage-earners as discriminatory and stated that "the action now taken by the Dominion government, instead of helping the war effort, might well result in the renewal of industrial unrest even greater than that which followed the imposition of Order In Council 7440."

He said that in Alberta alone thousands of wage-earners were affected by their exclusion from the mandatory provisions of the cost of living bonus policy of the federal government, and that steps should be taken immediately to remove this discrimination.

Today's War Moves

By LOUIS F. KEEMLE
Copyright, 1941, by British United Press

EVEN if Hitler's armies should sweep past Rostov and through the Crimean peninsula to take the Caucasian oil fields, the question arises of how much benefit he would get out of it.

The answer is, probably little, for at least a year to come. The oil which Hitler needs increasingly for his mechanized army must come from elsewhere, chiefly Rumania and from the synthetic production of Germany and the occupied countries.

These sources are not sufficient to keep pace with Germany's wartime consumption; not half enough, it is estimated. Unless new sources are obtained, it is only a question of time until Hitler's reserves are depleted and his motorized blitz tactics spiked.

DRAIN IS COSTLY

The Russian war has proved a costly drain on Hitler's oil supplies. It is a far greater daily, weekly, monthly drain than was entailed in the conquest of western Europe. There Hitler captured enough reserves to more than compensate for the loss. He has got none out of Russia.

There is no comparison be-

GREAT TEST NOW IN SIGHT

Egypt's Desert May Soon Answer One Of War's Biggest Questions

By EDWARD KENNEDY

WITH BRITISH FORCES IN EGYPT, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Coming weeks in Egypt's western desert may answer one of the war's biggest questions—whether Britain has developed enough striking power to throw back German armored divisions.

At Tobruk, British island of resistance on the coast of eastern Libya, for the first time since the war started British forces have shown sufficient strength and skill to hold off attacks of German armored units, supported by intense dive-bombing.

Now that it has been demonstrated the Germans can be defied, halted and frustrated, a greater test is in sight—whether they can be routed

For this reason, experts say, any offensive which may be undertaken in the desert against the Germans and their Italian allies may be one of the war's most significant engagements.

If British and Dominion forces dislodge Axis troops from Libya while the main German forces, especially the air force, is tied up in Russia, observers believe there is a good prospect the Middle East can be held.

But should they fail to drive the Axis out of Africa, the same observers say it is difficult to see how they could hold on in the Middle East.

Eventually the Germans might move more and more armored units to Africa, back them up with more and more aviation, and at the same time pour a powerful force from the other direction.

In ever living memory of the officers, non-commissioned officers and men of the 49th Battalion (Edmonton Regiment) who were killed in action, or died of wounds received at Passchendaele, in Belgium, on October 30, 1917.

Their courage nerves a thousand living men."

HUM OF MACHINERY NEW SONG OF RIVER

Soviet Industries Begin To Hum Along Volga's Valley

Entire Russian Factories Transplanted To New Spots Far Out Of War's Dangers

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

KUIBYSHEV, Russia, Oct. 29.—(Delayed)—(AP)—On the Volga, where the boatmen's song used to roll, the hum of machinery now is rising as industries spread along the river's flat valley.

From Moscow, Leningrad, Kiev, Kharkov and other industrial cities, threatened or occupied by the German entire factories have been picked up, carried off and transplanted to regions far from the front.

I have just inspected one factory, far from Kuibyshev, which was removed from Kiev and which Russians said now is more than fulfilling its production plan.

This modern, complex institution was ordered to leave Kiev on June 29 and within three days workers and machines started rolling by railway cars deep into Russia.

This was only seven days after the Germans invaded Russia. Kiev was more than 200 miles inside Poland.

LOSE LITTLE TIME

The factory personnel and the machinery arrived at the new site between July 10 and 18 and production was resumed Aug. 5.

August production, Russians said, was estimated to total 107 per cent of planned production while the September output was nearly double that of the factory at Kiev.

Russians proudly stated that workers volunteered to sacrifice their posts extra hours daily during the emergency period and engineers undertook to perform three to five hours' additional work daily as mechanics after finishing their own tasks.

The factory I visited brought 600 specialists from Kiev and engaged and trained local workers, including women and youths, from state labor reserve schools.

Nazis Driven Back Across Nara By Russ

slaught that picked detachments of Hitler's elite guards massed around Roslov "have been marking time for several days," and that German tanks were being used as stationary fortresses in an attempt to hold gains.

ADMIT KHARKOV LOSS

While the Germans advanced in the north, in the Kharkov sector, it was apparent Soviet Marshal Timoshenko was making a supreme stand to defend Rostov and thus prevent the Nazi armies from turning the Rostov "corner" southward into the Caucasus.

In the Crimea, where the invaders forced a break-through after 10 days of violent assault, the Nazi high command claimed Russian rearguard resistance had been shattered and that German forces were "relentlessly on the heels of the defeated enemy."

Soviet dispatches, conceding the fall of Kharkov, declared that in taking the city the Germans had lost nearly 150,000 killed and wounded, 450 tanks, 2,000 trucks and 200 guns.

In the Stalino sector, 100 miles north of Rostov, Germany's Italian allies acknowledged they had been halted by Russian counter-attacks and added that they had not been given "a moment's peace and rest in eight days"—as reported by Stefani, the Italian news and propaganda agency.

STALLED IN CENTRE

On the central front, it seemed clear that the German armies were stalled for the moment if not actually losing ground in the 29-day-old drive on Moscow.

Soviet front-line dispatches said Gen. Gregory H. Zhukov's Moscow defence forces had seized the initiative and recaptured half a dozen or more villages in three days of counter-attacks.

Street fighting was reported still raging at Mozhaisk, 95 miles northwest of Moscow, with the Russians firmly holding the outskirts after 11 days of close action.

American Miners Return To Work

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30—(AP)—John L. Lewis announced that the United Mine Workers had accepted President Roosevelt's proposal for reopening the strike-bound captive coal mines and added that the men would return to work as fast as arrangements could be made locally.

In some areas, Lewis said, the night shifts may return tonight. Other mines, he added, could be reopened tomorrow.

Lewis made the announcement in the hotel room of Myron C. Taylor, former board chairman of United States Steel Corporation, which owns some of the captive mines. Taylor was standing beside the mine workers' president when it was made and said he was "very much gratified with the broad co-operative attitude which Mr. Lewis had displayed in a difficult situation in time of great national peril."

tween the Russian campaign and the earlier ones. The Russian war is spread over a vast 2,000-mile front, Hitler's forces are meeting such opposition as they never encountered before. For more than four months they have been going at top speed, burning up resources at a prodigal rate.

Hitler's long supply lines must be fed almost entirely by gasoline-propelled vehicles. The broad-gauge Russian railroads have been of little use, except perhaps in a few cases where the Germans have been able back of the lines to lay a third rail for the use of standard German rolling stock. This is aside from the expenditure of oil for airplanes, tanks and mechanized fighting units.

GETTING IT PROBLEM

It therefore has been assumed generally that Hitler will strike at the Caucasian fields to replenish his oil supplies and assure a continuing source for the future. There is petroleum aplenty under the soil in the Caucasus, but getting it to the German armies in the form of refined gasoline, lubricating oil and other necessary products is a different proposition.

The Russians may be counted on to see to it that Hitler gets no immediate benefits even if he does take the Caucasian fields. Elsewhere in "Russia they dismantled factories, destroyed power sites, flooded mines and moved as much machinery and machine tools eastward as they could. From the accounts of roaming foreign correspondents, the most Hitler got, apparently, was some wheat which was not destroyed.

If the Rostov-Taganrog-Maikop oil fields in the north-western Caucasus are occupied, the invaders are likely to find the refineries wrecked and a good many of the wells put out of commission. The Russians, provided they have time, might be able to move a good part of the electrical refinery equipment to safety farther into Russia.

ALMOST INSUPERABLE

The Germans lack the equipment and technical skill to build their own refineries within, say, a year or a year and a half. With Rumanian and Bulgarian aid, equipment they might be able to set up small-scale refineries which would afford strictly limited production.

The alternative of transporting the crude petroleum or refined products over several thousand miles. Railway facilities and tank cars are lacking and the Black Sea route to Rumania is blocked by the Russian navy. The transportation and production problem is emphasized by the difficulty Hitler has had in getting the refined quota of oil out of Rumania. Production in Rumania, instead of increasing, has dropped.

If the Rumanian problem is so difficult of solution, the Caucasian one would seem almost insuperable.

and screeched down to the spot where Capt. Purcell was helping two photographers on a hillside.

Capt. Purcell turned and tried to dodge the falling canister. As he grimly explained later, "Like an ostrich I forgot to duck." His left leg was severed at the knee. He suffered no other injury.

Capt. Charles Letourneau, medical officer of a Nova Scotia regiment, was at the scene and after administering first aid had the injured officer rushed by motor ambulance to a casualty clearing station.

Before he was taken from the scene of the accident Captain Purcell smoked a cigarette and chatted with officers. Both Gen. G. R. Pearkes, commander of the 1st Canadian Division, and Maj.-Gen. C. B. Price, commander of the 3rd Division, spoke to him after he was taken to the clearing station. 15 miles away, where he was placed in the surgery room within 45 minutes of the accident.

This morning his batman, Driver Tommy Hunter of Kelleher, Sask., stood guard for an hour while he wrote orders and messages about things he wanted done. And, in his typical newspaper-like style of thinking, they amounted to plenty.

Capt. Purcell's appointment as P.R.O. of the Canadian Corps was announced Oct. 25, 1940, by Defence Minister J. L. Ralston in Ottawa. He took up the appointment Jan. 1 leaving his post of general superintendent of The Canadian Press on leave of absence. At 36 he is recognized as one of Canada's most able newspapermen.

Capt. Purcell was born in Brandon, Man., son of the late Philip Purcell, old-time newspaperman, editor of the Brandon Sun and King's printer for Manitoba. He is a graduate of the University of Manitoba, is married and has three children.

He started his working career on the Hamlet (Alta.) Herald, later going to Windsor, Ont., where he wrote sports for the Star. He joined The Canadian Press staff at Winnipeg in 1928, was named a Reuter news editor in 1932 and general superintendent in 1934.

Red Poppies Will Be Worn By Men Of Armed Services

OTTAWA, Oct. 30.—(CP)—Glowing red poppies in the headgear of members of Canada's fighting services will mark their tribute to the dead of the First Great War from Nov. 8 to 11, Canadian Legion officials said today.

Army routine orders have stated that a poppy may be worn on headdress of all ranks, off duty during the period of Nov. 8 to Nov. 11, inclusive, and a general signal to the same effect has been issued by the director-general of naval services. An Air Force routine order will also give permission to wear the poppy.

Hallowe'en, falling this year on Friday, cold boiled salmon will be one of the main dishes, after which will be served pumpkin pie and cream moulded in the shape of small pumpkins.

Each passenger will get a rosy-red McIntosh apple, assorted nuts, petit fours, funny faces in orange icing and sugar biscuits decorated with chocolate black cats.

Wing Commander Foss Is Promoted To Newfoundland

HALIFAX, Oct. 30.—(CP)—Wing Cmdr. R. H. Foss, who went overseas last year with the Royal Canadian Air Force's No. 1 Fighter Squadron, will soon take over command of the world's largest airport in Newfoundland, it was stated in an announcement Wednesday night from the eastern air command here.

Wing Cmdr. Foss has been second-in-command of the squadron since it was formed in Canada, and will transfer the Canadian war effort in two important phases, the question of larger Canadian armed forces, and the increasing of Canada's war industry to take care of expansion to which the government is already committed.

GREATER SUPPLIES

Canadian opinion in general wants greater Canadian armed forces, but Canadian allies, including Britain and Russia, want even greater supplies of Canadian war equipment. The Ottawa government is believed to be striving to strike a balance between these demands.

But in relation to the U. S. A., Canada's most pressing problem is to clarify the position of U. S. imports under the proposed price and wage ceilings and, what may be most important to Canadian industry, the position of U. S. imports from now on when Canada will be steadily shutting down its own civilian production in order to specialize more intensively in war production.

F.D.R. Explains His Refusal Of Olson Suggestion

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Oct. 30—(AP) — President Roosevelt telegraphed Gov. Culbert L. Olson Wednesday that "The inhumanity of the present regime in Germany has been too often repeated to single out one particular occasion."

The President's observation was by way of explaining his rejection of a proposal by Olson that the American people observe a minute of silence as a manifestation of sympathy for the French people over German execution of civilians.

Olson had suggested the sympathy silence be observed Friday at a time which coincides with the start of the five-minute period of immobility urged upon the French by Gen. Charles de Gaulle, leader of the Free French forces, as an anti-German manifestation.

The two British Columbia ministers, whose visit to Ottawa for this purpose was delayed by the recent British Columbia election, have an appointment to meet Mr. Ilsley and finance department officials tonight.

with Mr. Roosevelt is understood to be whether U.S. exporters to Canada will have to operate under the new Canadian price ceiling, and if so, on what terms.

BIG CUSTOMER

Canada has become a billion-dollar-a-year customer of the United States since the war started, about half of Canada's purchases across the line now being war materials under an priority ruling. The remainder includes normal imports of varying scales of importance to Canada in terms of wartime needs. The importance that U.S. interests attach to their market in Canada is understood to be the main reason for a fresh King-Roosevelt conference just before the Canadian parliament resumes its session and less than three weeks before the new Canadian price ceiling goes into effect.

Advance publicity on what may be an historic meeting and which in any case could prove to be of vital importance to Canadian war policy, has been meagre at the Ottawa end of the line. Government circles issued a statement that "if Mr. King finds it possible to get away he hopes to spend the weekend at Hyde Park as he gives a dinner party Mrs. Roosevelt, a purely personal visit."

The trouble with this cautious explanation is that the idea of Mr. King making a personal visit to the U.S.A., on the eve of re-opening of parliament is fantastic.

ANOTHER CONFERENCE

What is in the offing, it is believed, is another conference of comparable importance to the Ogdensburg meeting of August, 1940, which launched Canada and the United States on plans for joint defence, and to the Hyde Park meeting last April that set the pace of economic collaboration. Canadian purchases in the U.S. rose to $1,000,000 from $425,000,000 a year to an existing scale of $950,000,000 a year, and the last Hyde Park conference resulted in agreement by which Canada could finance this huge increase without becoming either a debtor to the United States or a lease-lend customer.

The solution was relatively simple then, the United States undertook to buy $300,000,000 to $400,000,000 worth of goods more from Canada, chiefly surplus war and raw material production, it is likely that the same method will be used at the meeting by David Duncan, acting chairman, who presided.

It was indicated at the meeting that the platform might include a demand for an application to the Dominion government for a loan to finance a low-cost house-building program of $100,000,000.

Sale of electrical energy by the city to towns in northern Alberta seeking it might also be advocated.

German Newspaper Tries To "Explain" Reign Of Terror

LONDON, Oct. 30.—(CP)—Voelkischer Beobachter, Hitler's newspaper, sought Wednesday to "explain" the reign of terror imposed upon Bohemia-Moravia by references to the "scale of anti-German activity which the Gestapo had to cope with," the British Broadcasting Corporation reported last night.

Claiming that counter-measures were not severe in proportion to resistance encountered, the newspaper said opposition did not come suddenly to a head, but began months ago "like an avalanche."

The paper contended that generals of the former Czecho-Slovak army had been in charge of armed defence force and that all "agitators and saboteurs" were incited by the London radio.

States Singapore Base Impregnable

SEATTLE, Oct. 30—(AP)—A young Seattle-born Japanese newspaperman, recently returned from the Orient expressed the belief yesterday that Japan could have taken Singapore a year ago but by delaying a show-down had "missed the boat."

"At that time," said William Hosokawa, a University of Washington graduate in 1937 who became editor of the Singapore Herald the following year, "the great naval base there didn't have the ships, the planes or the troops to protect itself. They have everything now, and the base is impregnable. Anyone who says the British can't do things in a hurry, and on a big scale, has another think coming."

Windsor Visits Detroit Plants

DETROIT, Oct. 30—(AP)—The Duke of Windsor visited Detroit's great arms plants today and the rapidity of his trip fitted in with the idea of defence "speed-up".

So quickly did the Duke walk up one aisle and down another in the Chrysler tank arsenal, meanwhile firing questions, that his entourage got short of breath.

The Duke, hatless and wearing a grey sweater and tweeds, was accompanied through the $20,000,000 arsenal by K. T. Keller, Chrysler president, and Edward J. Hunt, plant manager.

Noel Coward Fined On Finance Charge

LONDON, Oct. 30.—(CP)—Noel Coward, the playwright, was fined (200 (about $800) and 120 costs today for violation of Britain's wartime finance regulations.

The fine was levied on the first of three summonses charging violation of defence finance regulations. The others were marked "no separate penalty."

The playwright's counsel contended he was "nominally innocent," and that, being a man who was "bored with business," he was unaware of regulations. He explained that Coward had been in England only six weeks from the beginning of the war to May 10, when Coward left his business in the hands of others and it was a "staggering blow" when he was accused of evading responsibility and hampering the war effort by living extravagantly when he should have been contributing to the treasury.

Britons Urged To Leave All Jap Territory

SHANGHAI, Oct. 30.—(AP)—The British embassy in China tonight urged all British nationals in Japanese-occupied territory to leave as soon as possible because of "recent developments."

It was stated authoritatively Britain regards "the political situation in the Orient as having further deteriorated."

The embassy's action was said to have been taken after consultation between British officials in China and authorities in London.

Those who do not leave at once were advised they must "henceforth be prepared to remain where they are, irrespective of the future course of events, since no similar opportunity for British subjects to evacuate is likely to recur."

Their departure was termed "urgently desirable."

The embassy's statement, broadcast over local radio stations, said the British government would pay for the transportation of those without funds if they registered with British consulates between Nov. 3 and 15.

Previous suggestions British subjects leave Japanese - occupied China were much less urgently worded.

LOSSES ON EASTERN FRONT CUTS MANPOWER

Germans Being Called Home To Fight Against Russians

Nationals Living Abroad Are Pressed Into Service As Casualties Grow Fast

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Trustworthy advices reaching the Associated Press today said Germans abroad, some with homes and businesses in foreign countries, had been called to Germany in recent weeks to fight on the Russian front.

About 300 in small groups left one country in the past few weeks. The friends of one man who left three weeks ago have received word already of his death in action.

Apart from those advices, the BBC said Germany had been compelled also to draw workers from war industries for service into the fighting line and that to make up the gap in factory ranks "Germany now wants to buy skilled labor at high rates from neutrals."

SWEDEN PROTESTS

BBC said documentation for this lies in official Swedish reports that Germany is trying to recruit Swedish aircraft workers on a large scale and that in a memorandum to the Swedish government the director of the "Swedish social affairs administration" had protested these attempts to "buy out Sweden's labor."

NBC transcribed the BBC broadcast in New York.

BBC said Hitler's recent statement that certain phases of war industry were being closed down because of accumulated reserves actually meant Germany lacked enough trained workers to keep them going.

"The German army is claiming more and more to the heavy casualties on the eastern front," BBC said.

"Forced labor from the occupied countries has not given the results expected. The 'go slow' and sabotage are also severely hampering German war output. That is why today Germany is trying to obtain neutral workers to man her war plants."

FEELS LOSSES KEENLY

Fitting together facts given by German officials and trustworthy information from countries around Germany the truth appears to be that Germany feels keenly her total manpower losses in Russia and shortage of skilled labor in her factories. Germany has recruited skilled workers from all occupied countries during the last year. Doubtless this stream is dwindling because the supply is less and because there is evident growth of passive and even violent resistance to German rule.

Raw materials may on the whole still be plentiful in Germany, but her industrial overlords would be supermen if they had anticipated all possible British airmen, moreover, it is pointed out, have destroyed much material and disrupted many factories.

Complicating and accentuating these shortages, industrial experts see weariness of German workers as slowing production. Germans for years have been rationed somewhat. Their work hours have been lengthened. There has never been a 40-hour five-day week in Nazi land. Scientifically they may be well cored for but Britain learned in the last war and this one that too many hours of work produced less than shorter hours.

OPEN TO SABOTAGE

It is not known statistically what the results are in Germany, but labor experts have concluded that the German effort to recruit workers at high pay is a pretty fair indication that she needs them badly. If she didn't need them badly, they say, she wouldn't brigade tens of thousands of possible French, Polish, Netherlands and other conquered, humiliated workers with Germans whose minds they might poison and whose work they might sabotage.

Post-War Plan Vital Problem Minister Says

TORONTO, Oct. 30—(CP)—Consideration of a post-war plan which will assure general security, ranks second in importance only to the present war effort, Pensions Minister Mackenzie said today in an address before the Association of Canadian Advertisers.

"Our task for today is to win the war; and our task for tomorrow is to see that the world which emerges after the war has been worthy of the effort," he said.

"If you think victory will just be followed by another Armistice Day of jubilation, and then that we shall drop back into the old groove you are due for a colossal surprise and a bitter disappointment.

NEW WORLD TO EMERGE

"We shall never again know the world that ended on Sept. 1, 1939—nor deep down in our hearts do we want to know it again.

"We shall have to develop a kind of government and a kind of economic system that rules out unemployment. No other can survive. Security for the masses must be the first essential of our post-war world."

Epidemics, unemployment, trade depressions and political uprisings which had followed wars of the past could all be avoided by planning, he said.

Organization of a cabinet committee on demobilization and re-establishment was outlined by the minister. One sub-committee was directed to the welfare of ex-service men and the other to general reconstruction.

A reconditioning program for ex-service men included a war emergency training plan under which 2,000 men had already been accepted for training courses. Financial provisions of a post-discharge plan included aid for farmers, men taking up private ventures, and students who had their education interrupted by enlistment.

MUST GIVE COMPENSATION

"We cannot give them back the years of their lives that they have devoted to the service of their country, but we can try to give some compensation in the way of educational and training opportunity," Mr. Mackenzie said. "That expenditure will pay big dividends to Canada in the years to come."

The reconstruction program would be subject to constant revision as conditions which would have to be met were clarified.

"Roughly two-fifths of the people of Canada will have to find another job," he predicted. "This tremendous change will come upon us very suddenly. It will seem to happen almost overnight."

"I do not believe there need be any crash, but certainly that is not too strong a word for what will happen if we do not have a program in complete readiness.

"You know perfectly well that if two-fifths of our people suddenly find themselves unemployed, they are not going to wait very long for governments and industrialists and financiers to do something about it.

UNPRECEDENTED OPPORTUNITY

"There are leaders of another kind who will be prepared to act in a very drastic way that will not at all appeal to the representatives of industry assembled in this room today.

On the other hand the resources and assets of Canada would offer an unprecedented opportunity in the post-war world. The country would have the greatest industrial plant in its history with an unlimited reservoir of labor and a great potential market.

Close co-operation of industry, labor, science and all provincial and municipal governments, was recognized as essential to successful planning and it was the purpose of the government to lead the way to closer consultation of these groups.

Weather Turns Fair, Warmer

"Fair and warmer" is the news from the meteorological station at the Highlands, Thursday morning. The thermometer took a sudden swing upward on Wednesday afternoon and has remained at readings around the freezing mark since that time.

Most of the northern points are enjoying a somewhat warmer spell with readings in the 40's at most places. Dawson Creek is leading the group with 49 and McMurray and Spirit River follow with 48.

Alaska barely managed to stay above the zero mark with a reading of one above.

New Political Group Not Being Planned In War

By CHARLES GUNNING

WINNIPEG, Oct. 30—(CP)—Premier William Aberhart of Alberta, in an interview today with The Canadian Press, said it is not the purpose of the new Democratic Monetary Reform Organization of Canada to set up another political group in Canada during the war.

"Our purpose is not to form another political party in Canada, especially during the war," said Mr. Aberhart who was elected national president of the organization at a dominion convention here yesterday.

MOBILIZE OPINION

"We simply want to mobilize public opinion in its demand for a reform of the money system which will enable the people to give their maximum support to the war effort and to the preparation of the post-war period.

"We are very anxious to so organize the peoples' national credit so that full confidence and assurance of ultimate victory and future happiness and contentment will appear on the horizon of our nation's hopes.

"I am sure only thus can we give our greatest effort and our most determined support to the fight for economic security and democratic liberties."

PROPOSALS PLANNED

Mr. Aberhart said that the following proposals will be made by the new movement to the federal government:

Establishment of a "national finance commission to be responsible to parliament through the minister of finance for the issue and withdrawal of all money (both currency and credits) in accordance with the nation's need and for the administration of the monetary system in accordance with the principles of true democracy."

Chartered banks shall "cease to create, issue and withdraw financial credit, except as agents for the national finance commission, and they should be required to hold currency or credit certificates, issued by the national finance commission, through the Bank of Canada, against their total deposits."

"The national finance commission should be required to establish a proper system of accounting and ascertain the total prices of goods available for purchase and the total purchasing power of the public. Any surplus purchasing power should be withdrawn by means of an equitable system of taxation and any deficiency of purchasing power should be corrected by reduced taxation or by an increased issue of credit in the most equitable way possible.

PRICE REGULATION

"The price of primary products and in particular agricultural products as required, should be regulated to provide producers with guaranteed prices equivalent to the average cost of production plus a reasonable profit for their services to the nation.

"A system of price regulation should be introduced to ensure that prices will not be inflated by unwarranted profit taking. Goods in short supply should be apportioned for the period of war on an equitable basis."

Money needed by the federal government for either war or normal expenditures, except for purchases of war supplies from outside the country, settlement for which is to be made by exports, should be made available by the Bank of Canada. Surplus purchasing power should be withdrawn via taxation and this would afford a scientific check against inflation.

"Industrial and trade requirements would be met, as at present, by means of loans from chartered banks on such terms as the national finance commission may authorize as being equitable to both borrowers and banks. Special facilities should be provided for firms engaged on war contracts."

Families Of Soldiers Are Being Helped

Special attention to families broken up by enlistment or bereaved due to the war has brought overwhelming responsibility to Salvation Army workers, Lt.-Col. Frank Ham, representative of the Salvation Army on the electoral conference of churches in Canada, said Thursday.

Lt.-Col. Ham arrived here to participate in a four-day congress of the Salvation Army units of northern Alberta. Representatives from many points in northern Alberta are expected to attend the congress, commencing with a welcome meeting in the Army citadel at 8 p.m. Thursday.

"It is true that the problems connected with the unemployed is vanishing but more complex and graver situations arise everywhere," Col. Ham said. One of these is the housing and hospitalization which is becoming increasingly acute at munitions and training centres.

To provide more hospital space, a nurses' home costing $150,000 is being built in Winnipeg. A new wing is being added to the Grace General Hospital in Windsor and many minor alterations in all parts of Canada are being undertaken by the Army to ease the problem, he explained.

Much more impressive is the work of the army if one considers the fact that 135 workers are now commissioned to full time war service, he said.

History of Edmonton in the making was reviewed by G. R. F. Kirkpatrick and Sam Smith, members of Edmonton's sinking fund board, at the annual dinner tendered members of city council by the chairman of the sinking fund board. The dinner was held Wednesday evening at the Macdonald hotel.

Mr. Kirkpatrick recalled the first tax sale in Edmonton, and the brisk bidding which featured it. He recalled also that he was the oldest civic servant at the meeting, having been town treasurer in 1892.

He told of the lobbying that was done to get the low level bridge for Edmonton, and traced the development of the city to its present eminence.

Aberhart Named National Head Of Reform Body

WINNIPEG, Oct. 30—(CP)—Premier William Aberhart of Alberta late Wednesday was chosen president of the Democratic Monetary Reform Organization of Canada as supporters of the new movement elected national officers on the final day of their three-day convention here.

Paul Prince, delegate from Ste. Rose du Lac, Man., was named vice-president and Hon. Solon E. Low, Alberta provincial treasurer, secretary-treasurer.

DIRECTORS NAMED

Previously, provincial directors were elected for six of Canada's nine provinces. They were:

British Columbia, Major A. H. Jukes, Victoria; Alberta, F. D. Shaw, New Democracy member of parliament for Red Deer; Saskatchewan, F. E. Werry, Reward, Sask.; Manitoba, F. F. Siemens, Winnipeg; Ontario, Alex. McFarlane, Ottawa; Prince Edward Island, E. Birk Murphy, Charlottetown.

Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Quebec were not represented at the convention and delegates agreed that only those at the convention could be nominated for office.

REASON FOR CONVENTION

The convention was called by New Democracy members of parliament as the result of the response received by them in answer to queries from all parts of the Dominion to persons interested in monetary reform. Eight of the 10 New Democracy members of parliament came to the convention as well as Premier Aberhart, members of his Social Credit administration and several Social Credit members of the Alberta legislature.

In addition to the six provincial directors elected, delegates chose three official regional deputies and two temporary regional deputies. The official deputies are:

British Columbia-Alberta: Rev. E. G. Hansell, New Democracy member of parliament for Macleod; Saskatchewan - Manitoba - Northern Ontario: H. W. Ferrier of Winnipeg, prominent in Manitoba Social Credit activities; western and eastern Ontario: H. H. Hallatt of Hamilton, Ont., honorary president of the League for Economic Democracy.

Quebec: Walter Kuhl, New Democracy member of parliament for Mackenzie; Hartland S. H. Blackmore, member of parliament for Lethbridge and leader in the House of Commons of the New Democracy group. Mr. Blackmore is in Britain obtaining first hand information on the war and was appointed Maritime deputy despite his absence because of the temporary nature of the position.

Explaining the temporary deputy appointments, Mr. Low said Mr. Blackmore and Mr. Kuhl would hold their offices until "Quebec and the provinces in the Maritimes are brought to their rightful places in the organization."

Vice-President Paul Prince is a leader in Manitoba Social Credit circles. He was an unsuccessful Social Credit candidate in the last Manitoba general election.

V.V.R. Unit Face To Face With Indian Menace At Northville

Blue Blanket Wants Catch Hitler

By J. M. GILROY

NORTHVILLE—Maybe somebody who keeps a close tab on international events can keep the V.V.R. unit here from going a paltry million dollars in the hole on the big Armistice dance around Hitler's coffin which they are staging to send smokes to citizens on service.

It's due to the stubbornness of that mystery medicine man of Muskeg Creek, Chief Blue-blanket. The chief comes galloping through the trackless wilderness the other day, quirt in one hand and scalping knife in the other as he lashed his bronk into a dead run.

"Wah," he says, making the old peace sign, as his fiery mustang skids to a stop before Heap Sleep lodge.

"Er-wah," says the V.V.R. press agent.

"Wah, me hear bush drums say heap bad paleface Hitler dead," grunts Blue Blanket. "That straight talk? Me scalp him, get one million dollars—mebbe buy new gun, new squaw, heap plenty flour, tea, sugar."

"Hey, what's this?" cried the press agent, alarmed at prospects of the boys losing all the profits out of the dance as a result of some litigation with Blue Blanket.

"Wah, my paleface friend speak with two tongues?" Blue Blanket hinked suspiciously, running a thumb along the scalping knife. "One year ago, moccasin telegraph say rich American give one million dollars to man who catch Hitler. Now bush drums bring word V.V.R. men" want people dance around Hitler in black box. Wah—me kill him—get one million dollars."

"That million dollars was for Hitler alive," the paleface explained. Blue Blanket looked disgusted and slaps aboard his bronk. "Wah—paleface heap crazy!" he snorted. "What good keep Hitler alive? Me see rattlesnake, me kill."

Then someone will tell us where we stand legally as regards that million iron men, we will cheerfully turn old Blue Blanket loose—and give him some shells, too.

IMPORTS NECESSARY AS LAND LOST

Soviet Union Now Believed To Be Deficient In Wheat

Russia Already Takes Delivery Of Canadian Shipments Of Cereals

By FRANKLIN MULLIN

CHICAGO, Oct. 30—(AP)—United States grain men, poring over war maps to see how much of the rich Russian agricultural land has been engulfed, expressed belief today the Soviet Union, world's biggest wheat producer, has become "wheat-deficient".

By this they meant that Russia is to continue to feed her millions their accustomed amount of breeadstuff, imports will be necessary.

This is the most important change in the world's wheat picture since the war began, market experts said, except for the cutting off of most of Europe's continental importing nations from the international market. The wheat market has received calmly what in normal times would be considered somewhat sensational reports that Russia already is taking delivery of Canadian wheat, either trans-shipped through Britain to Archangel or via Vladivostok. This traffic has not been confirmed officially.

FIFTH OF ACREAGE LOST

How important the Russian situation will be over the long pull will depend upon the Soviets' ability to import wheat or other cereals to make up the deficiency. Normally considered self-sufficient, with a wheat crop annually of about 1,000,000,000 bushels, Russia is estimated to have lost possibly a fifth of her acreage.

If any of the present world wheat surplus is absorbed by Russia, grain men said it would have an important effect on international market conditions. Even shipment of United States wheat to Russia is a possibility, though now considered remote, providing ships and ports like Archangel and Vladivostok are accessible. The United States government owns almost 200,000,000 bushels of an exportable wheat surplus estimated at around 500,000,000 bushels.

WILL GET FIRST CALL

Canada, Argentina and Australia, all surplus producers, have large stocks of wheat priced cheaper than United States grain and thus, on the basis of price alone, probably would get first call, trade experts said.

Study of the map reveals the German thrust to Rostov has put most of the rich Ukraine, with its average of almost 16,000,000 acres of wheat, behind battle lines. Lesser wheat areas to the north also have been overrun. Remaining in Russian hands, however, are the middle and lower Volga basins, with about 13,000,000 acres average; the North Caucasus and Transcaucasia, with 14,000,000 more; Kazakstan, northeast from the Caspian sea, with 7,000,000 acres, and the Ural and western Siberian regions with about 17,000,000 acres.

Parliament To Resume Sitting On Monday Next

By FRANK FLAHERTY

OTTAWA, Oct. 30—(CP)—Although a short sitting is in prospect officials of the House of Commons expect a large attendance of members when parliament resumes Monday.

Speaker John A. Glen, of Marquette, Man., has already arrived in Ottawa to make arrangements for the sitting and a few other members have opened their offices in the parliament buildings.

Highlights of the sitting are expected to be the tabling of reports by the war expenditures committee and speeches by Prime Minister Mackenzie King, Conservative House Leader Hanson and ministers heading departments concerned with war activity.

NO FORMAL OPENING

As parliament merely adjourned and did not prorogue last June next week's sitting will start off just as if members had been here all the time. There will be no opening formalities, no speech from the throne.

As announced recently by Mr. King, the formal opening of a new session when the business for the year 1942 will be handled, will take place early in the new year.

While the House of Commons has been called to meet at 3 p.m. E.D.T. (noon M.S.T.), the Senate will meet at 8 p.m. with no legislation expected. It is not clear whether the Senate will transact any business.

Exact course of discussion in the commons has yet to be decided finally. Mr. King intends to give a general review of the war situation.

Mr. Hanson is also expected to speak of his overseas trip and offer some suggestions arising out of it.

RALSTON EXPECTED BACK

Defence Minister Ralston, now on a trip to the United Kingdom, is expected to return in time to make a report on his trip and on army developments generally.

Leaders of the two smaller parties, M. J. Coldwell of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, and John Blackmore of the New Democracy, are on a trip overseas with several other members and are not expected back in time to take part in the debates.

In Mr. Coldwell's absence it is expected Angus MacInnis of Vancouver East will lead the C.C.F. group while E. G. Hansell of Macleod may take Mr. Blackmore's place as chief spokesman for his group.

TO SUBMIT REPORTS

War Services Minister Thorson, as chairman of the war expenditures committee set up to examine the way money voted by parliament for war purposes is spent, and to make recommendations for economies, will submit the reports of the committee which carried on its investigations before and after the June adjournment.

Should Mr. Thorson or any other member of the committee move for house concurrence in the reports it would throw their contents open to a debate which might prolong the sitting.

If, however, the reports are simply laid on the table there would be no debate on them, and as far as can be learned at this stage that appears the likely courte.

Munitions Worker Dies Of Injuries

CALGARY, Oct. 30—(CP)—Leon Meyus, 35, Calgary, died last night in hospital of injuries sustained when the car in which he was riding was struck and demolished by a Canadian Pacific Railway train at the Ogden shops.

Meyus fought for life for 12½ hours despite his injuries, which included a fractured skull, internal injuries, fracture of the legs and severe cuts about the head and body.

The crash occurred at 7:40 a.m. on Canadian Pacific Railway property opposite the gates of Ogden shops.

A worker in the munitions section of the shops, Meyus was driving to work.

Coroner Dr. George R. Johnson said an inquest will be opened Friday.

Meyus came to Canada from Belgium seven years ago. He has no known relatives in Canada.

International Labor Meeting Hears McLarty

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(AP)—A C.I.O. executive protested by telegram Wednesday that the Congress of Industrial Organizations had been denied representation at the International Labor Organization Conference now under way at Columbia University.

James B. Carey, national secretary of the C.I.O., telegraphed a protest to Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, who is president of the conference.

Worker, government and employer delegates from 35 countries are attending the meeting. Two of the four advisers of the United States workers' delegation are C.I.O. officials, but have no vote.

SEND ONE DELEGATE

Each nation was permitted to send one labor delegate. The United States chose Robert J. Watt, international representative of the American Federation of Labor.

Disclosing that Watt had been selected by President Roosevelt, Miss Perkins declared that when the United States joined the International Labor organization in 1934, "this country and the I.L.O. agreed together that the A. F. of L. was the most representative labor body. The only other labor group in the country at the time was the Trade Union Unity League. It was very small and it has since gone out of existence."

Miss Perkins added that "Mr. Watt is a member of the governing body of the I.L.O. and was elected to it by the worker delegates of all the countries."

CANADIAN MINISTER

Labor Minister Norman McLarty of Canada told the delegates that the fact there is not a single strike today in any Canadian war industry was due largely to the efforts of Canada's delegates to the conference.

Mr. McLarty praised President Roosevelt's Monday night address, saying: "It is a matter of congratulation to mankind that today we have a president of this country who rebukes a dictator who suggests a formula of 100 to 1."

(The reference apparently was to the Nazi reprisals in occupied France.)

In an interview later, Mr. McLarty said there was no opposition in Canada to the Dominion's new policy of wage and price control, and he added:

"Everything's fine. Labor is co-operating. There are no strikes. Wages are stabilized on a basis equalling the highest of any year between 1926 and December, 1940. There is no unemployment."

The governing body voted to continue Edward J. Phelan, acting director of the International labor office, in that position. Phelan is an Irish citizen and last February succeeded John G. Winant, who resigned to become United States ambassador to London.

U.S. Army Bomber Ends World Flight

SAN DIEGO, Calif., Oct. 30—(AP) — A four-motored United States army bomber completed an unheralded round-the-world flight upon its arrival at March Field Tuesday with members of the aid-to-Russia mission.

Reports said the plane had 30 bullet holes in its wings as members of its flight over warring nations.

The hop from Hawaii marked the first Pacific Ocean flight of a B-24, although many of the bombers have crossed the Atlantic to Great Britain.

The craft took off yesterday for the east, presumably for Washington, after which news of the flight was released.

Consolidated spokesmen said the plane was one of the first B-24s built and went east several months ago to make the trip to Moscow with the Russian-aid mission members.

Nazi Diplomats In Eire Number Five Envoy Says

OTTAWA, Oct. 30.—(CP)—J. J. Hearne, high commissioner for Ireland in Canada, said Wednesday Germany has five diplomatic representatives in Eire, the same number as before the war began.

Mr. Hearne was commenting on a Toronto speech Tuesday by Hon. R. B. Hanson in which the Conservative house leader described Eire as "the back-door menace" to Britain because of her neutrality and said he had been told Germany's diplomatic mission in Dublin had risen from 80 to upwards of 2,000.

Mr. Hearne, who represents Eire in Canada, said:

"The exact number of the German diplomatic staff in Eire was five before the war and it is five still. Mr. de Valera (Prime Minister Eamon de Valera of Eire) has made that clear, again and again."

Mobile Kitchen Presented City

LONDON, Oct. 30—(CP)—A mobile kitchen, gift of Hon. Randolph Bruce, former lieutenant governor of British Columbia, and Mrs. Bruce, was presented to the Lord Mayor of Portsmouth at a ceremony in the Guildhall Square. The Countess of Bessborough, president of the Canadian Women's club, which supervised the building and equipping of the vehicle, made the presentation.

BEATIN' THE BLITZ —By Rick Elmes

HELSINKI, Oct. 30—(AP)—Army authorities Wednesday night issued an order branding "the affectionate treatment of war prisoners a crime against the troops at the front," and threatened to deprive over-generous Finnish civilian employers of the further service of the captive Russian laborers.

Serb Insurgents Fight Axis Troops

BERNE, Oct. 30.—(AP) — Two hundred Serbian insurgents were reported Wednesday to have been killed in a night-long battle with regular Axis occupation troops near the Yugoslav village of Belanevitch.

Dispatches to the Belgrade newspaper Novo Vreme said the insurgents were surrounded by troops who brought up reinforcements when the fight assumed the character of a "veritable battle."

At dawn the fight continued with the greater part of the insurgent band destroyed, the newspaper said. It claimed that the insurgents were Communists and that only a few escaped. It mentioned no losses among the regular troops.

November 11 Armistice Day For Americans

WASHINGTON, Oct. 30—(AP)—President Roosevelt Tuesday proclaimed Nov. 11 as Armistice day and called upon the American people to pause on that date "to show gratitude for the zeal, to rededicate the nation to the fundamentals of human liberty, and to defend our future."

The President himself will speak at ceremonies in Arlington national cemetery.

Cadets Killed

PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 30—(AP)—Two flying cadets died Wednesday in the crash of their United States army training plane while on a routine instrument flight. They were identified at Luke Field as John F. Pinette, Fort Lewis, Wash., and Jack H. Saunders, Sacramento, Calif.

Never Give In, Churchill Tells Harrow Boys

HARROW, England, Oct. 30.—(CP)—Prime Minister Churchill Tuesday told the boys of Harrow, his old school, that "the lesson to be derived from recent experiences is never to give in—never, never, never."

"Not in any event, great or small, large or paltry; never, never yield except to conviction and good sense," he said. "Never yield to force, never yield to the growing and apparently overwhelming might of the enemy."

Recalling his last visit to the school 10 months ago, the Prime Minister said Britain then was standing alone.

"We were poorly armed but we are not so poorly armed today," he said. "We stood alone and to many countries it seemed our account was closed and our history finished, liquidated.

"But our country stood in the gap. There was no flinching. By what seemed almost a miracle outside these islands we now find ourselves in a position where we can be sure of victory if we only persevere."

Swedish Vessel Is Sunk Off Holland

NEW YORK, Oct. 30—(AP)—The 1,300-ton Swedish freighter Gunloc has been sunk off the coast of The Netherlands, and her crew saved, an American-Swedish news exchange dispatch from Stockholm said yesterday. Cause of the sinking was not given. The ship was the 110th lost suffered by neutral Sweden since the war began.

Defeated Leader Calls For Unity

HALIFAX, Oct. 30—(CP)—Leonard W. Fraser, leader of the vanquished Conservative party in Tuesday's Nova Scotia general election, Wednesday night issued a brief statement calling for wartime unity and thanking members of his organization for their support.

"I have not words with which to express the depth and the warmth of the appreciation which I wish to convey to those who worked for and voted for Conservative candidates yesterday," Mr. Fraser said.

"The distraction and the diversion of the election is over. We all of us, must now devote our whole attention as a people to the one responsibility which transcends all others—our duty to our Empire at war."

Mr. Fraser suffered a personal defeat in the riding of Cumberland.

STABILIZATION OF PRICES AND WAGES

Your Country asks your loyal support of this necessary Wartime Measure

TWO NEW CONTROLS have now become essential in Canada's wartime design for living. These are:

(1) Control of Prices

Commencing November 17, 1941, there may be no increase in the prices of goods and services generally unless absolutely necessary and authorized by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board.

(2) Control of Wages

No employer, with certain limited exceptions, may increase the basic wage rates paid to his employees unless authorized by a Board on which the Government, employers and employees are represented. But after February 15, 1942, every employer, with the same exceptions, will be obliged to pay a cost of living bonus and to adjust this bonus every three months.

Action Necessary to Stop Inflation

This Government action has been taken to prevent the inflation we knew in the last war, and its subsequent depression, unemployment and suffering.

Every housewife knows that prices are rising, and rising prices, unless controlled, will make it more costly and difficult to finance the war. Rising prices, unchecked, will spread confusion in industry and trade; will hinder production and proper distribution of supplies; will make the cost of living rise more rapidly than wages and salaries; will lessen the value of savings; will result in hardship for almost everyone, and especially those with small incomes. And the result of uncontrolled inflation, after the war, when prices drop, will again be depression and unemployment. Prices cannot be controlled without control of wages. Excess profits are, and will continue to be, under rigid control.

Coverage of Wages Stabilization Order

The Order is applicable to the following employers:

1—Every employer normally subject to the Industrial Disputes Investigation Act.

2—Every employer engaged in the manufacture of munitions of war, or war supplies, or the construction of defence projects.

3—Every building trades employer with ten or more employees.

4—Every other private employer with fifty or more employees.

The Order does not apply to employers in agriculture or fishing, or to hospitals, religious, charitable or educational associations operated on a non-profit basis.

Wage Provisions

Except on written permission of the National War Labour Board, no employer may increase his basic wage rates. This permission can only be given in cases where the Board has found the wage rates to be low. Wage rates which are unduly high will not have to be decreased, but in such cases the Board may order the employer to defer the cost of living bonus.

Cost of Living Bonus

Every employer covered by the Order must pay to all his employees except those above the rank of foreman a wartime cost of living bonus.

Effective November 15, each employer already paying a bonus under PC 7440 of December 16, 1940, shall add to such bonus an amount based on the rise in the cost of living index for October, 1941, above the index number used to determine the current amount of the bonus.

Effective February 15, 1942, each employer who has not been paying a cost of living bonus must begin to pay a bonus based on the rise in the index between October, 1941, and January, 1942, unless ordered by the Board to base the bonus on the rise in the cost of living over a longer period.

The bonus is calculated on the following basis: For each rise of one point in the cost of living the amount of the bonus shall be 25 cents per week, except for male workers under 21 years of age and female workers, who, if employed at basic rates of less than $25.00 per week, shall receive a bonus of 1 percent of their basic wage rates.

These bonuses will be adjusted regularly every three months.

Administration

The Order will be administered by five regional Boards under the direction of a National War Labour Board. Labour and employers will be represented on each of these Boards. Watch for the announcement of these Boards to which inquiries concerning the application of the Order should be directed.

Whole-Hearted Support Required

Your Government knows that this policy, as it affects labour, industry, commerce, and agriculture, demands a degree of restriction to which Canadians are not accustomed, and is directly a wartime measure. It will demand self-discipline and self-control. It will need the whole-hearted support of every one who has the well-being of his fellow citizens at heart. But by loyal co-operation, Canadians can have much more assurance that the fears, sense of insecurity, the suffering and profiteering which inflation always brings, will neither interfere now in the winning of this war, nor in the recovery and reconstruction of Canada and the Canadian way of living after the war is over.

The Nova Scotia Elections

The general elections in Nova Scotia leave the composition of the legislature not greatly changed. At dissolution the house included 22 Liberals, five Conservatives and one C.C.F. member. The new assembly will count 23 Liberals, four Conservatives and three C.C.F. members. At the general elections four years ago 25 Liberals and five Conservatives were returned. Over this period the Liberals have lost two seats and the Conservatives one, to the C.C.F. It is seldom that so little difference in party standing results from elections four years apart.

Obviously the voters generally are satisfied with the record and the policies of the MacMillan Government, which was the Macdonald Government until the then premier went to Ottawa as minister of naval affairs.

If federal issues had any part in the outcome the conclusion is plain. There is no protest vote discoverable in the returns. If the Sirois report was a factor, the provincial Government has been endorsed for approving it. If the veterans registered their opinion of the war policy, their verdict is positive and emphatic. If trade or other external matters cut any figure in the contest, the decision gives no evidence of discontent.

Well Done

Edmonton's Community Chest fund had passed the $97,000 mark at the end of last week, about $10,000 more than the minimum amount required, and collections still to be turned in promised to bring the total well up to $100,000. The citizens may well feel gratified at this excellent response to the first joint appeal of the co-operating welfare organizations. Public thanks are due to all those who gave their time to the work of canvassing, organizing and carrying on the campaign.

Edmonton has the distinction of having gone beyond its objective farther than any other city in Canada.

As a result the associated organizations will know in advance how much money they will have with which to carry on their operations during the year, and that the amount is somewhat larger than the smallest sum that would suffice. They can accordingly plan their work in advance, and because of the extra financial leeway allowed can plan a trifle more broadly than they anticipated. Edmonton's needy ones will be properly taken care of; that is the sufficient reward of all those who helped in any way to roll up the fund.

The Community Chest idea, it is to be inferred, has the backing of the townsfolk very generally. The institution is away to a good start, and there can be little doubt that it will be permanent.

Stabilizing The Dollar

Discussing the price-wage control system, the federal Minister of Labor said the purpose is that wage-earners shall enjoy "real and not merely nominal or imaginary wages." The aim is to establish a fixed relation between the dollar a man gets as wages and the amount of goods or services the dollar will buy. Dollar wages are nominal; real wages are what the dollar wages will pay for at the counter. In remote mining regions men have lived poorer on ten dollars a day than they could have lived elsewhere on a dollar a day. At the same time the purchasing power of a dollar tends to adjust itself through the play of supply and demand. There are frequent variations, but they are temporary, and the trend is toward uniformity between a given amount of money and what can be got for it.

War suspends the law of supply and demand as an automatic regulator of values in terms of money. Hence control measures have to be adopted to prevent the dollar and its normal buying power getting out of alignment. Otherwise we have dollar deflation as prices rise, and a further rise in prices because the dollar's buying power has fallen.

Control of course implies the acceptance by wage-earners generally of a static rate of pay. The hope of increased dollar wages has to be given up for the time, in order that the price level may be fixed from going up.

While prices have not risen drastically in Canada as yet, they have risen enough to show that without control there would be a continually rising price level—in other words, a continual loss of the real wages obtainable for a fixed amount of dollar wages. Rather than go through that harrowing experience, it is better that a halt be called to the upward movement of both dollar wages and prices.

Life In Berlin

The day after President Roosevelt pledged the United States to "the destruction of Hitlerism," Dr. Goebbels issued an appeal to the people of Berlin to keep their heads up and not give in. Whether or not the President's declaration had intensified the gloom, it is evident that Berliners are not in a happy frame of mind, and equally evident that they have good cause not to be.

The note is an entirely new one for the minister of propaganda, and one he would not sound unless the circumstances were most urgent. How urgent is to be judged by excerpts from the appeal: "I know you have it hard today. You must all work as never before. Your wives sometimes stand for hours before stores in order to buy some vegetables. Your children are frequently sent into the country and separated from you for months. Sometimes you have to go without a glass of beer, sometimes without cigarettes. Because necessary hands are not available you have to shovel coal; than at nights go into air raid protection cellars, and after two hours' sleep return to hard work. That is the way it is in many of the cities of the nation, and in some even worse".

This is the condition officially declared to exist in Berlin and other German cities two years after Herr Hitler launched the war that was to make Germany prosperous as it never had been. The condition, Dr. Goebbels says, is bound to continue, and must be endured. This is his way of breaking the bad news as gently as possible that the war in Russia is to drag along all winter. He admits also that the supposedly ineffective raids the R.A.F. is making upon German cities compels the inhabitants generally to sleep in dugouts. And, despite the plunder of the continent, the "new order" is an order of distress since even vegetables are so hard to obtain.

If Hitler doesn't have Goebbels shot for putting all this in print, it can only be because popular unrest is reaching such a pitch that an all-out appeal for solidarity is seen to be necessary—even by the Fuehrer.

Sir Kingsley Wood says taxes in Britain have taken the profits out of war and "he must be an exceedingly lucky man who can make a fortune today". If the tax laws there are as sweeping as they are in Canada, the fortune-maker would have to be not only lucky but a master crook. Corporation income taxes and super taxes absorb the profits of big business here almost to the vanishing point. There are no war-made millionaires in Canada this time.

Sacrifice Non-Essentials For War

Enemy Might Get Carburetor; False Figures Quoted; Demand For Conscription

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor, Bulletin: Our Mr. Weir told us on October 11 that the women of America spent eight hundred million dollars on cosmetics. But why hit at the women only?

I am wondering if the money spent on liquor and tobacco by the men could be added to that of the women's cosmetics, then how many more battleships could have been paid for.

We all know that women are silly and ruin their looks with cosmetics, but surely it is worse to ruin your brain and stomach.

But putting all that aside I think if both the men and the women would be unselfish enough to forego the money spent on these articles to the war fund, it might enable us to win the war more quickly.

And they would have a better opinion of themselves.

Keep It From Nazis

Editor, Bulletin: I have read several letters with reference to the "Pogue carburetor." It seems to me that the people responsible for keeping it off the market are doing a very sensible thing for a very obvious reason.

Perhaps we car owners are having a little difficulty in getting all the gas we would like, yet I myself would rather walk than see our government or oil companies put out a carburetor that some Nazi agent could copy and smuggle over to Germany to help Hitler and his gang of thugs get more miles per gallon.

Figures Wrong

Editor, Bulletin: In a recent issue of your paper you printed a letter from a Mr. J. W. Hodgson on the subject of civil servants receiving $15.00 a month cost-of-living bonus, and also a soldier's wife receiving $60.00 per her allowance.

To begin with the two statements are incorrect, and for Mr. Hodgson's benefit and enlightment I wish to quote a few figures.

A Grade 2 clerk in the civil service receives a monthly salary of $90.00 together with a bonus of $11.91, if married, and $9.90 if single which in this case is subject to a 5% Nat. Defence Tax and 10% Income Tax. Now in the majority of appointments are in the lower grades, being Grade 1 and 2 so you can see there are very few single men in the service receiving $160.00 per month plus $15.00 a month bonus.

In comparing a private remuneration with a Grade 2 clerk, who in both cases are married and have two children, the private's pay exceeds the clerk by approximately $25.00 per month, counting wife's allowance, children's allowance, his own pay, plus clothes and living allowance, if he resides at home or at the barracks. Why don't you do yourself Mr. Hodgson if you care, as a person being allowed to write false information such as this article, have it verified, and surely you should be ashamed. You should surely use his thinking powers or at least become qualified to speak on the subject before he opens his mouth.

Lose Faith

Editor, Bulletin: In reference to Aberhart's speech on monetary reform and his opposition to centralization of power, a white man should practice what they preach. (Actions speak louder than words). His government is depriving the old residents of Fullis of the only means of making a livelihood by closing Lake Wabamun, which is not necessary, as closing a lake does more harm than good.

They even refused us the privilege of domestic fishing this summer.

All residents signed the petition in order to increase aid to Britain's supply of pork and beans.

Granting of our old federal regulations would injure no one and does not cost or take a penny away from anyone or Jesus as the Premier talks about so why not be decent with his own centralization of power!

When a person uses religion to cover up and enamel his talks and promises, this bad policy and bad conditions created by his government have a tendency to make people lose faith in Christianity.

"By the Unthinking"

Editor, Bulletin: In a recent speech Mr. Crerar is reported as having said: "Another reason why it (conscription) has been talked about by the unthinking."

I would be very pleased to learn when or how Mr. Crerar and our present government acquired a monopoly on the thinking together with the money.

The Canadian Legion, at its Dominion convention, passed a unanimous resolution in favor of conscription as also did a number of other large and influential organizations.

Are we to believe, on Mr. Crerar's say-so, that all of those bodies have been deprived of the ability to think?

Working Wives

Editor, Bulletin: I would like to ask the public what they think about the soldiers' wives, without children, who are working in the stores, getting a bonus.

I would like to tell of one soldier's wife who is working in a department store, earning, together with her army allowance, $105 a month.

If the bonus comes in she will get another $5, perhaps more, which will give her altogether $110 a month.

Are such selfish wives, as this one, who would take bed and board from a working, single girl, to be helped further?

The government should devise a method of taxing tightwads who sit snug and warm while they let "George do it."

How Long Can Russia Resist Hitler?

Operations of Red Army Shrouded in Mystery as Communications Grow Difficult

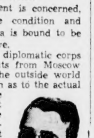
By HAROLD L. WEIR

So far as this continent is concerned, any dissertation on the condition and prospects of Soviet Russia is bound to be almost entirely speculative.

The evacuation of the diplomatic corps and foreign correspondents from Moscow on October 15 has left the outside world with even less information as to the actual state of affairs on the long Russo-German front than was available while foreign observers remained in the Soviet capital.

As a result of the cordial exchanges last month between Josef Stalin and the heads of the British and American missions, subordinate Soviet officials had become far more communicative and reticence towards all non-communist diplomats and journalists.

A large flow of information was being made available and somewhat more liberal facilities for transmission of news was accorded correspondents than had been enjoyed for several years—although the sum total remained pathetically small in comparison to the demands of the situation.



Harold L. Weir

Remote From Source

But that improving situation was rudely destroyed.

Kuibyshev, formerly Samara, to which the diplomats and correspondents have been evacuated, has the serious disadvantage of being remote from the scene of events and from first hand sources of information.

The men who dictate Russia's policies remain in Moscow—340 miles away which is five days journey in wartime. The most crucial battlefronts of the war—Kharkov, they were thousands of miles removed.

Moreover, the news transmission facilities at Kuibyschev are greatly inferior to those of Moscow.

These considerations must be borne in mind in reading any evaluations of the immediate situation in Moscow.

One can only interpret such official and unofficial news as emanates from Russia, Berlin, London and other sources as indicating a trend rather than a well-substantiated condition.

Gift of Prophecy

There is, of course, the case of peregrinating newspaper parties whose members pay flying visits to London or Moscow or some other embattled point and immediately become recipients of the gift of prophecy and proceed to tell the world in very positive terms just what will happen next.

A good many of our opinions on the war are formed by these amazing fellows.

Men who are very ordinary in their ordinary jobs become, by some weird legerdemain, both omniscient and prescient when they are thrown, bewildered and bemused, into a situation entirely strange to them.

Overcome by their strangely-acquired gifts, they talk pontifically of British intentions and Russian plans as though they had suddenly crawled into Mr. Churchill's innermost mind and had become blood brothers of Mr. Stalin.

This sort of thing, it must be sadly admitted, colors a good deal of our news —although the real working newspapermen on the job do not let their family confess their inability to make much sense out of the chaos.

It is true that Lord Bryce made a quick trip, one time, to the United States and gathered enough material for "The American Commonwealth"—the classic treatise on the American constitution.

But there are precious few Lord Bryces among the itinerant trippers to the scenes of battle. The secret of visualizing bombs makes no man an oracle. Nor does the smell of TNT make any man a sage.

One must look a bit further than these pompous pronouncementsa for a considered and well-informed opinion.

Generalities

Nevertheless there are deductions to be drawn from the general conduct of the Russian army and knowledge of the terrain—deductions which can be drawn just as well in Edmonton as on the continent of Europe.

It is a certainty, for instance, that nothing has so far indicated any feeling on the part of the Russians that they are defeated or should relinquish the struggle.

The stubborn and heroic resistance of the Red Army has compelled Hitler to expend an appalling amount of war material as well as manpower which means a corresponding amelioration of the military position of Great Britain, at least during the period required to rehabilitate the German war machine.

We have no detailed information concerning the extent of Russian losses, but it is obvious that they must be at least as great as those of Germany.

With a nation is fighting either for its very existence or for a stake as great as world domination, no expenditure of life and material is too great, provided the objective is achieved.

The fact remains, however, that Russia's losses are more serious for Russia than Germany's losses are for Germany. For whereas Russia has lost many of the plants in which her war materials customarily are produced, Germany retains much of her productive capacity.

She can replace her losses. Russia's replacement is seriously handicapped.

New Bases

It would be cheer charlatanry to pretend to know whether or not Moscow will fall. One person's guess is as good as another's.

It might be a fair conjecture to say that unless Hitler makes some terrifically successful thrusts before winter sets in, Moscow is reasonably safe, except for air raids, until spring.

But if Moscow does fall and the Russians have to retreat, one does not have to exercise occult powers to adopt a pose of omniscience to know that the extent of Russian resistance will depend, subsequently, upon a single factor.

The ability of the Russian hinterland to produce food and munitions to keep the great Russian army alive and going.

It is reasonable to believe that the Soviets have been working desperately to transplant their productive plants into safer and more protected areas far behind their lines. Whether or not they have been able to promote a sufficient migration of skilled workers to operate those plants and till their narrowed fields is something no one knows.

We must remember that the section of Russia overrun by Hitler is by far the most populous section. The area behind the Russian line, Siberia, for instance, is very thinly populated.

These are the factors that will determine the extent of Russian resistance, irrespective of the pretentious prophecies made by inspired guesses under the aegis of sensational newspapers.

He Wound Up His Clock For The Last Time

Nostalgic Memories of Exiles From Occupied Europe Crowd About Queer Things

FROM THE NEW YORK TIMES MAGAZINE

It happens at the oddest times and places. Someone else is where you are being entertained by kindly people, sometimes it is when we are quite alone that the unreality of it all comes tumbling in on us and makes us suddenly slightly ill.

My wife and I have felt it most acutely when we have been to a "movie". We are not fighting then. We relax and forget, and then, when the film is finished and we rise to leave, it surges upon us with a rush that we are not in the Champs Elysees with little cafes tables parked outside, that there will be no supper and meeting with friends at Fouquet's across the wide avenue, that there is no quick ride in a taxi to our apartment in the Avenue Foch to return to.

The first time it happened was in Lisbon, while we were waiting for a boat. Then it happened in New York. Each of us felt it, but we said nothing for neither of us wanted to stir memories in the other that are best forgotten. It happened again in Montreal and there so vividly—perhaps because the city has such a strong French flavor—that we betrayed to each other our surprise that we were not back where for an acute instant we had believed we were.

It comes over us sometimes while we are motoring. A bend of the road, a sudden familiar smell of grass or hot, moist earth or a passing line of trees and we have to jerk back into reality from an instant of illusion that we were on Route Nationale No. 3, heading for our seaside cottage on the now murdered shore of the English Channel.

Friendly House

Once at night the chiming of a clock in a friendly house wakened me and I could not understand why the window of my bedroom was on the right instead of on the left as it should be. It took some sleepy seconds—which turned into hours of painful wakefulness—to realize that the hour had not been sounded by the old eight-day clock which stands, or stood, in the hall of our Paris apartment.

I wound it up for the last time on the morning of June 10 last year—I wound it automatically, perhaps sentimentally. I knew we would have to leave Paris that day, for the Government had already vanished in the midst of a smoke-screen of misstatements by the Ministry of Information.

As I turned the key of the timepiece I thought what a silly thing to be doing, and yet it did not seem right to leave that old clock unwound, for I had always wound it on Mondays, as my father had done before me. The Gestapo who entered the apartment four days later must have been surprised to find that clock ticking.

When we exiles talk together we find that all of us suffer from these little illusions. We have little clocks that we wind, seek and enjoy them—like opium eaters escaping reality. There is one royal personage in exile who keeps him for one week of mid being able every longer to secure a certain kind of very ordinary soap, for the smell of that soap, he says, brings back more than anything else the nation that he is once more in his native country.

Another exile who held high authority in his own land finds that the smell of hot sealing wax restores to him for one tremendous moment the sense of his old dignity. A third tells how when he was finished and ready to sit down to his desk which he has been engrossed his left hand wanders backward instinctively to where he used to have a bell to call his secretary.

Other Exiles

In the past nearly all of us knew exiles from other lands and other regimes. We thought that we understand something of that strange distraught loneliness that would sometimes come over them in the middle of a conversation. We know now that we failed to understand how, all of a sudden, they fled felt that the dinner party at which they were sitting was unreal, that the people around them were dream people, that this was not their life but something they were reading—fiction.

There is among us a princess of royal blood who pushes her children's perambulator along the streets of the suburb in which she lives, and tells how at times she feels that she had changed places with her own governess, once a foreigner in her land. "I know," she says, "that now she thought and felt, and I do so want to apologize for having been such a nasty unsympathetic child."

There one gets down to the greatest of our difficulties. We know that between us and our hosts there is a high wall which neither of us can cross. They have been very kind. When we arrived they liked to listen to our stories of escape. Our photographs were published in the newspapers. Dinner and cocktail parties were given for us. We were made comfortable, and now that the excitement has passed we do not forget all these kindnesses.

We are to them a story or a film. It is impossible for them to realize in the comfort of their homes the reality of our homeless existence and its heartache. They are to us, shall we say, like a set of borrowed golf clubs with which we cannot get on to the old familiar terms. They make us nervous so that we either "press" or play short.

Celebrities

At first, when we were for a brief moment "celebrities" or near it, and most of us were excited by our escape and delighted by our reception, we did not feel embarrassed. Our audiences were eager to hear our stories, and it was only occasionally that we sensed their disappointment that these stories were not as gruesome as they had hoped. They had been used to hair-raising radio descriptions of bombing and machine-gunning from the air, and in the middle of our tales some one would interrupt to tell, probably inaccurately, of some much more dreadful experience he, or more often she, had heard about.

Most of us realized quickly that our days of "fame" would be very fleeting. There was another boatload coming in with a new Royalty, a new eminent person with an exciting story to tell, a new tragic figure. We knew that these eager listeners would soon have a new sensation, and most of us hurried to make what we wanted most, new homes for ourselves—to find new occupations—so as to become independent.

Only a few became what we call "professional exiles" content to move from one city to another, like films on tour, telling their stories over and over again and sustaining interest in themselves—at a small profit.

Inter-Americanism

CHILEAN PRESS SERVICE

"The practical brotherhood of nations is the aim of the American Republics during those troubled times, and they are doing well," said Juan B. Rossetti, Foreign Minister of Chile.

"Their immediate preoccupation is defensive union, of course, but they will not be satisfied only with this; they will continue striving toward a permanent union. Chile has determined to promote the unity of the Continent because unity is the natural outcome of our nations' political maturity under the mandate of previous generations which fought and died to uproot autocracy and all its teachings from our soil . . .

"The time has come for our American republics to convene for the elaboration of a new political economy on some such lines as I have suggested. Only thus vitalized, can America become impregnable!

"To consolidate at once a democratic Pan American economic policy is the first step, and the first absolute essential for the consolidation of continental defence. "And in continental defence, Chile plays her part to the full."

Giant Stone Quarries Are Vast Underground Storage Vaults For Ammunition

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Oct. 30—(CP)—Out of giant stone quarries 100 feet underground engineers have carved Britain's greatest ammunition storage depot—an arsenal described by one high-ranking officer as "the eighth wonder of the world."

It has nine miles of avenues and bays, stacked high with bombs, shells, boxes of TNT and cordite and cases of smaller ammunition. Into this secret reservoir pour the products of munition factories of Britain, Canada and the United States.

They are stored here under 70 to 100 feet of rock, impervious to bombs, until they are required on the widespread fighting fronts.

HAS RAILWAYS

This enormous arsenal is equipped with underground railways and sidings, connected directly to a main-line railway, miles of conveyor belts, underground power stations, emergency military headquarters, telephone exchange, barracks, canteens and an air-conditioning plant.

Long before the war broke out military authorities realized plans must be made to store huge quantities of explosives out of reach of bombs. This place was chosen after an exhaustive survey carried out in 1934-35.

The project started in 1936 with removal of 1,000,000 tons of rubble, having great underground galleries supported by pillars of stone. Acres of stone floor were laid in concrete. Pillars were reinforced with cement and a network of steel girders.

The cost was $90,000 an acre. In one section divided into walled-up compartments it ran to $225,000 an acre.

The arsenal is still being extended until it can store and handle 225,000 tons of ammunition.

FIREPROOF DOORS

In one of the several quarries forming the depot is a corridor 1,500 feet long. Narrow-gauge rails run along it with trucks hauled by small diesel locomotives or overhead trolley-cables. This quarry is divided into 10 areas, each containing 10,000 tons of ammunition. Fireproof steel doors seperate the areas.

Smoking is strictly forbidden except in some underground rooms where no ammunition is stored. Girls on the telephone exchange are allowed a stove for making tea. But matches and tobacco must be taken down a shaft not used for ammunition.

A pillared concrete hall shortly will be opened as a restaurant. Off it are barracks for the men whose dual job is to defend the area and work in the ammunition depot. They have a canteen, dining room, a recreation room with table tennis, radio and books and dormitories with double-tiered beds.

One-Man Campaign

Russell Birwell, pictured at his desk in London, is conducting a one-man campaign for an American declaration of war against Germany. While in London he will write a book concerning his pet theory. He attracted nationwide attention recently with a full page advertisement in a magazine captioned, "What the Hell Can We Get Out of This War!"

Former Candidate Is Found Guilty Defamatory Libel

ST. JOHNS, Que., Oct. 30—(CP)—L. Omer Perrier, recently defeated Liberal candidate in the St. Johns-Napierville provincial by-election, Wednesday was convicted on a charge of defamatory libel by a court of King's bench jury under Mr. Justice Alfred Duranleau. Sentence was reserved.

The charge arose out of the last federal general election campaign in March, 1940. It was brought against Perrier by Georges St. Germain, defeated as an Independent Liberal in the St. Johns-Iberville federal riding.

St. Germain charged that the libel was committed when he was attacked in Perrier's newspaper "Le Canada Francais."

Soviet Fleet Holds Control Of Black Sea

LONDON, Oct. 30—(CP)—The Soviet fleet is in complete control of the Black Sea, an authoritative source said Tuesday, and could cut Axis communications if Germany attempted any sea expedition correlated with her land drive to the east.

Even the loss of Sevastopol, the main Russian base, which is an objective of the German drive against Soviet defences of the Crimea he said, would not be fatal, as some base facilities probably could be transferred to Batumi or Novorossisk, on the eastern shore of the Black Sea.

The source gave the strength of the Black Sea fleets as:

Russia: One battleship with 12-inch guns, five cruisers (one old), 27 destroyers, around 50 submarines, 50 motor torpedo boats.

Rumania: Four destroyers, three motor torpedo boats delivered by Britain before the war, three submarines, two minelayers. More submarines may have been obtained by the Rumanians since the German occupation.

Bulgaria: Two motor torpedo boats, other smaller craft.

Turkey: One battle cruiser with 11-inch guns, two old cruisers, four destroyers, two torpedo boats, seven submarines, three minelayers.

He said Sevastopol was the strongest base in the Black Sea but because of the small amount of Axis warships there the base would be of little use to the Germans if captured.

Your Figure, Madame!

By IDA JEAN KAIN

Just by a simple flick of psychology, you can reduce without having to call too strenuously on your will power. All that is necessary is for you to appreciate how much slimming can mean in the way of having fun. When you do that, you begin to acquire a natural distaste for the extra calories or the faint streak of laziness that might prove a stumbling block.

It seems that once a woman makes up her mind what she wants, any means justifies the end. Nothing can stop her. In this particular instance, it is a more attractive personality she wants. Otherwise, she would not undertake such a disciplinary program. And once her possibilities as an attractive woman are fully realized, she would choke before taking a calorie over the 250 or 350, or 500 allotted for a particular meal. And she would make herself exercise daily.

Such logic in a nutshell fairly well sums up the views of M. E. Munis, New York career consultant. Mr. Munis's observations have not only given him an almost uncanny insight into the somewhat intricate workings of the feminine mind, but have convinced him that these workings can be directed to advantage.

He insists that slimming should, from the beginning, be recognized as both a psychological and physiological change.

It is his belief that the introvert woman, the one who tends to withdraw into herself and feed and eat chocolates, is the one who has the greatest struggle against fat. Her decision to slim down is rooted in a longing for a more active social life.

So, from that point on, she is different. She wants to mix more with people, and to have them like her.

If you take Mr. Munis's advice, then, the first time you go to a party after you have made up your mind to slim down, you will start getting away from yourself. When you enter the room, you will not say, "Here I am—please start approving me!" instead, you will say, "Well, Hello! What goes on here?"

And by the change in your attitude, you will become a participant rather than a wallflower. But you are not to buttonhole your new acquaintances and tell them what a martyr you are to slimming. No, indeed! You'll take the change in your shape as casually as a change in hair style. Then their compliments will come spontaneously and will encourage you all the more.

There seems to be no doubt that once you get the right slant on weight, slimming becomes 100 per cent. easier. And proof that you do have more fun as you lose pounds is furnished in that steady stream of letters from successful reducers. Every single one of them writes that she feels healthier, happier and younger.

YOUR DIETITIAN,
Ida Jean Kain.

McKenney On Bridge

With Earl Ackerman of San Francisco, vice-president of the Pacific Bridge League, and I. F. (Nate) Gaffney, president of the Cleveland Whist Club, I went to Newark, N.J., where the New Jersey Bridge League was holding its mixed team-of-four contest.

Duplicate—None vul.

South	West	North	East
1♣	Pass	1♠	Pass
3♦	Pass	3♠	Pass
4♣	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening—♥K. 30

This contest brought out many outstanding players, especially among the women. Mrs. A. M. Sobel played with Waldemar von Zedtwitz on one team, and Mrs. R. C. Young of Philadelphia was a member of another team.

Here is an interesting hand I saw Mrs. Young play during the match. Sitting South, she won the opening lead with the ace of hearts. She led the three of spades and played the nine from dummy. West won and returned hearts, South ruffing the third round.

A low trump to the queen put dummy in, and also revealed the bad trump split. North led a diamond for South to win by a finesse of the jack.

Now it was useless to set up the diamonds by a third round ruff in dummy, for then East's trump length would kill the suit. So Mrs. Young boldly cashed her last two trumps, then led the club to the king.

As she had hoped, East held the ace and did not have the last heart. He could not prevent dummy from getting in for a second diamond lead that gave Mrs. Young all five diamond tricks.

The average player as declarer would lead the four of clubs trying for two club tricks. Mrs. Young wisely rejected this idea as too dependent on fortunate breaks. Most of her tricks would have to come in spades and diamonds. It was important to lose no tempos in establishing both of these suits.

Looking them Over

by JACK KELLY

WE Canadians, especially out here on the breezy western plains, pride ourselves on the breadth of our viewpoint and fancy that we have a more world-wide consciousness than the people in just about any other country you care to name. We may be flattering ourselves, but there is a surprising lot of evidence that seems to back up this idea.

Regardless of whether or not this is true, it is becoming more embarrassingly evident every day that we are appallingly ignorant about matters pertaining to South America.

Most of us think of conga dancing, gauchos, guitars, coffee, Brazil nuts, the Andes, the Amazon and the pampas when South America enters into the conversation, but beyond these hazy, disjointed mental pictures we know mighty little of the vast continent south of the Panama cut.

Probably because of the fact that our ancestors came here from Europe, the majority of Canadians who travel abroad generally go eastward across the Atlantic. It is rarely that we think of South America when planning a long vacation trip. We've been missing a lot for, while we have been sticking out our chests over the super-dooperosity of our North American development and riches, our South American neighbors have been doing things that it would pay us to have a look at.

All of this applies to sport as well as to commerce, industry, art and Carmen Miranda.

45,000 at Montevideo Soccer

HONORABLE JAMES A. MacKINNON, federal minister of trade and commerce, will have some mighty interesting things to tell his fellow-Edmontonians about his recent trade agreement trip through South America.

Always interested in sport, Mr. MacKinnon found time to see what South America was doing along this line. In a letter to a friend here, he frankly admits he was astonished by what he found.

At Montevideo he attended a soccer match that packed 45,000 into a magnificent stadium. "Just out in the bay from this stadium, the Graf Spee is now rapidly settling down into the sands. To the people here it is an unclean thing," Mr. MacKinnon commented.

Sport Club Has 23,000 Members

IN Buenos Aires, Mr. MacKinnon was entertained at a sport club with a membership of 23,000—and that's not a typographical error. The Canadian minister was also deeply impressed by the magnificent race tracks at South America's cities and the high development of the thoroughbred breeding industry there. Bicycle racing is another favorite sport in many South American cities with cycle dromes drawing tremendous crowds. The traditional sport of bull-fighting of course still flourishes in these centres with a predominant Spanish background.

However, while Mr. MacKinnon points out Canadians' woeful ignorance about South America, he says that the folks south of Panama are just as ignorant about Canada. He found them anxious to find out everything they could about us and he spent hours exploding the idea that Canada is a sort of preserve for Red Indians, cowboys with six-shooters, polar bears and Eskimos.

Short Stuff Before "30"

THE annual meeting of the Edmonton District Hockey Association will be held in 409 Agency Building on Friday at 8:00 p.m.

Tonight brings a wind-up dinner by the Edmonton Junior Football League at the King Edward.

Ching Johnson, coach of the new Washington Ulines, says club-owners are hurting hockey by paying too low salaries. Ching isn't telling the players anything new.

Cracks Jerry Nell of the Hot Springs New Era: "Comes word now that ol' Dizzy Dean will arrive here about Jan. 1 for a series of baths billed to lay the groundwork for another come-back try. If Dizzy does make a come-back in big league baseball, there's something in the water here which has gone un-noticed this far."

Denies Rumor Gehringer Signed

CLEVELAND, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Alva Bradley, owner of the Indians, said it was a "pure guess" that Charley Gehringer would manage the tribe next year.

"Gehringer is one of the finest ball players I've ever seen in action," Bradley said, "but even his friends call him a sphinx, and I don't know how it would be to have a sphinx for a manager. He's spoken to me only once."

Roger Peckinpaugh said he had heard nothing of the Gehringer possibility, and that he knew nothing about any changes in the club's organization and personnel.

Drastic Action By Racing Board

CHICAGO, Oct. 30.—(AP)—The Illinois Racing Board yesterday ordered three men and a woman ruled off the turf for life in connection with its investigation of a race won at Hawthorne Park Sept. 24 by a horse listed as Rapid Bone, but later identified as another horse named Hasty Notion.

Barred from the turf were: R. V. C. Van Cleve, listed by the board as owner-trainer of Rapid Bone; William E. Rafferty, reputed owner of Hasty Notion; Pete Wells, not definitely identified; and Mrs. Geo. Ehringer, an aunt of Rafferty's.

In addition, the board ordered all evidence in the case turned over to the United States attorney general, the Illinois attorney general, and Cook County's state's attorney, Thomas Courtney, for possible grand jury investigation.

Hasty Notion, or Rapid Bone, won a race at Hawthorne Sept. 24, at odds of 8 to 1.

The board said Van Cleve had purchased the horse from Brad Brodsky, of Philadelphia, for $9,500.

War Call Hits Old Connie Hard

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Connie Mack's life these days just seems to be one disappointment after another—and he wants so much to grab another pennant with the Athletics before throwing in the sponge.

It was bad enough that his A's folded in the 1941 campaign and ended up in the cellar. Now it looks as if the navy is going to take the mainspring of his building plans for next year.

From San Francisco Wednesday came word that star outfielder Sam Chapman had been recommended by Lt.-Cmdr. Gene Tunney for appointment as a physical education instructor. With an A-1 draft classification, Sam is expected to be in training soon.

Of course, it's going to affect us if we lose him," lamented Connie. "He's a pretty good man and one of the real ones I was depending on to build the team around next season."

Now Mack, approaching his 79th birthday and 58th season in baseball, is ready to put every member of the 1941 roster on the block if he can get the men he wants. He'll hold open house for owners with trading ideas at the Florida minor league meeting in December.

Connie's first desire still is pitchers but he's also interested in plugging up the left side of his infield, though mainly he wants spirited players.

"I don't want any more of those fellows who hit only for the record books," he declared. "I want players who win games. Look at Mickey Cochrane and Jimmy Dykes. They have always been spirited players. I think Mickey could win pennants with any kind of good team just because he doesn't know when he's licked."

Irvin Still Rates Ken Reardon Greatest Defence Prospect Of All

Dick Irvin . . . Still enthused

ST. HYACINTHE, Oct. 30.—(CP)—Mid-way through the last National Hockey League season, Coach Dick Irvin went overboard for one of the rookies starring with his Canadiens, proclaiming that he'd be a "super-star" in two more years. The player was Kenneth Joseph Reardon.

With a new season almost upon him, the 20-year-old former Edmonton defenseman apparently is bent on fulfilling his boss's prediction, for at the club's training camp here he has been impressive in practically every workout.

Kenny stepped into the big show last season, and immediately became a hit with the fans. His dashing, courageous type of game played a major role in rejuvenating the Blue, Bleue, Rouge, which was losing ground rapidly in the eyes of Montreal's hockey followers.

IRVIN REALLY ENTHUSES

Coach Irvin has seldom been known to go into raptures about his players, but of "Beans" Reardon he apparently can't say enough.

"I've rarely seen an athlete with more courage," said Dick. "He's afraid of nothing, that kid. He'd tackle Joe Louis if he had to without batting an eyelash."

The Canadiens mentor added that an outstanding feature of Reardon's game is that he has "defensive instinct." In other words, Irvin explained, "he's a born defenceman who anticipates plays and knows where to go and what to do instinctively."

Irvin qualified his statement somewhat by adding that "as yet he can't always do what he should do in the split seconds a player has to act, but that's a matter of mechanics which he will pick up as he goes along."

With an additional 10 pounds on his burly frame, Ken should pack more punch, said Trainer Bill O'Brien, adding: "Remember he still is only 180 pounds."

Although the Canadiens starting lineup has not been officially settled, it is likely that Reardon will pair with the bespectacled Tony Grabosk as one defence duo, with Jack Portland and Cliff Goupille forming the other rearguard post and Butch Bouchard as alternate.

"Beans" started his hockey days as a forward, but gradually broadened out and was moved to defence. He was a member of the Winnipeg Monarchs of 1937, and played with Edmonton Athletic Club when they lost to Oshawa in the Memorial cup finals in 1938-39. He remained with Edmonton the following year and then made his jump to Canadiens.

HOCKEY FAMILY

Hailing from a family of hockey players, Ken has a brother Terry, who was with Boston Bruins of the National League and the Hershey Club of the American League last season. A younger brother, Larry, is playing amateur hockey out west, and is hailed as a comer.

Ken said there is still another member of the family, Paul, who is a pretty keen hockey player. He added: "But I don't think Canadiens will draft this member. She's my sister, Patricia."

Jim Henry Cops Net-Minding Job Vacated By Kerr

WINNIPEG, Oct. 30.—(CP)—Jim Henry, acrobatic Winnipeg goalkeeper, who played a major role when Regina Rangers won the Dominion Senior Amateur Hockey championship last spring, will play in the National Hockey League this season with New York Rangers, Manager Lester Patrick announced Wednesday night.

Patrick announced signing of three other amateurs to Ranger contracts, including right winger Grant Warwick and centre Angus Cameron, both former Regina teammates of Henry, and centre Norman Burns of Granby, Que., who played last season with Washington Eagles of the Eastern United States amateur league.

Patrick also said Rangers will carry 18 players this season instead of the customary 15 to 16. Future Ranger replacements are quickly available when needed. Previously Rangers operated Philadelphia Ramblers of the American League as a minor league farm but this season the Philadelphia club passed to other hands and Rangers have no professional farm.

Herry, Warwick and Burns will make their N.H.L. debut Saturday when Rangers meet Toronto Maple Leafs at Toronto. But Cameron, troubled with a back injury suffered while playing golf last summer, will be given medical check-up in New York before making his debut, Patrick said.

Patrick chose Henry as goalkeeper to succeed Davey Kerr who has retired. Lester said Omer Kelley, goalie from Tulsa Oilers of the American Association, suffered a nervous disorder which reacted on his playing ability during the closing days of Rangers' training camp here. Kelly has been sent home to Baltimore, Md., and as soon as his physician pronounces him physically fit again, he will resume play and probably will be given another year in the minors.

With Oshawa

OSHAWA, Oct. 30.—(CP)—Red Tilson, classy pivot star of last season's Regina Generals, arrived here Wednesday and soon was performing on the ice in company with two other former players with the Regina team, Kenny Smith and Herby Sullivan.

Leaf Rookies Impress

Toronto Maple Leafs have high hopes that these two additions to their 1941-42 squad will produce great things. Nick Knott, Oshawa speedster, left, and Johnny McCreedy, right, are two of the most promising rookies to don the Maple Leafs' uniforms.

Eagles Victors By Freak Goal

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 30—(AP)—New Haven Eagles opened the American Hockey League season Wednesday night with a 4-3 victory over Providence Reds, winning on a goal scored by a Providence defenceman. The freak tally broke a tie midway in the final period when Scotty Bowman of the Reds, trying to clear Eagle Coach Earl Robinson's passover in front of the cage, accidentally batted the puck into his own net.

Robinson, credited with scoring the goal unassisted, had pulled the Eagles into a tie only six seconds before when he took the puck at the end of a pretty zig-zag passing play and blasted it past goalie Mike Karakas.

The Eagles were continually coming from behind in the hard fought game. Gus Mancuso making the winner's first score on a short shot early in the second after Ab Gollings had put Providence ahead late in the first period.

Again Augie Herchenratler put Providence ahead and Marcel Tremblay evened it up. Girard Tapin slammed home a rebound shot for the final Red tally five minutes before Robinson made good on his doubleheader effort.

BARONS DEFEAT HORNETS 6-4

CLEVELAND, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Running up a lead of three goals in the first 12 minutes, Cleveland Barons opened the American Hockey League season here last night by defeating Pittsburgh Hornets 6-4 before 7,429.

Herb Foster, newly acquired left wing, Joffre Deslisle and Norm Locking gave the Barons three tip, but the Hornets lessened the gap in the last five minutes of the first period with goals by Mackie and Wilson.

After a scoreless second period, the Barons and the Hornets alternated at scoring during the third session, Cleveland getting three goals and Pittsburgh a pair.

Cleveland was the first to count, Foster scoring on a Cook-Giroux combination. At 10:17 Deslisle counted again for the Barons, taking a Cunningham pass and a little later Deslisle figured again, giving Locking a clear shot for a goal. Then it was Pittsburgh's turn, Mackie relaying an Allen pass in at 15:46. The Hornets counted again before the end of the first frame, Schultz and Allen combining to fire Wilson a shot from close in.

In the third frame the Barons' goals were counted by Milford, on a pass from Melnyk, Robertson, on a Mackenzie assist and the Locking-Deslisle combination. The Hornets' two were scored by Mackie, assisted by Wilson, and Lloyd Brydson, combining with Roubell and Wilson.

Red Wings Ready Meet Canadiens

DETROIT, Oct. 30.—(AP)—Detroit Red Wings, who ended their home preseason training scheduled Wednesday and will leave today for Montreal for their National Hockey League season's opener with Canadiens Saturday.

Manager Jack Adams, starting his 15th year as Detroit's leader, said his squad was at full strength except for Wilbur (Dutch) Hiller who has a hip injury. Adams had planned to start Hiller at left wing on his first line with Syd Howe and Modere Bruneteau, but Gus Giesebrecht has clinched the centre job, Howe moving to left wing.

The Wings play an exhibition game tonight at Niagara Falls, Ont., and then will continue to Montreal.

Politics Fog Skipper Angus

LUNENBURG, N.S., Oct. 30.—(CP)—Skipper Angus Walters, who found the political weather warmer than anything he'd ever encountered at the helm of the racing schooner Bluenose, wasn't sure today whether he'd stick to this strange landsman's game.

The salty Angus, who never met defeat when he and Bluenose campaigned together for The International Racing Fishermen's championship, found out Tuesday what it feels like to cross the line in an opponent's wake. Running as a Conservative in the provincial general election, Capt. Walters wound up behind three other candidates for the two seats in Lunenburg. But Angus, a political greenhorn making his first try for office, managed to pile up the respectable total of 4,349 votes.

"I'm not discouraged," Capt. Walters said today. "But I don't know about keeping at it."

Ross Says Team Looks Best Ever

HERSHEY, Pa., Oct. 30.—(CP)—If pre-season training means anything, and all of the National Hockey League managers agree it does, Boston Bruins may have an unbreakable grip on the Stanley cup.

The champions, who regained the prized trophy by drubbing Detroit Red Wings four straight in last season's final series, have been practising here for a week which saw, Manager Art Ross said, "the most satisfactory preliminary work the Bruins have had in their 18 seasons."

The same forces that enabled the Bruins to go through 23 games without a defeat while winning the league championship will attempt to defend it during 1941-42 with one possible exception.

PASSPORT TROUBLE

Terry Reardon, who endeared himself to Boston fandom last season, is having passport troubles and none of the Bruins management dares to predict the outcome. While Terry marks time in Canada, his place on the third line is being held down by 19-year-old Frankie Mario, up from Regina Rangers, Allan cup champions.

Mario is the only newcomer to be signed to a Bruin contract and he can thank the Reardon situation for that.

The Kraut line, centre Milt Schmidt and wingers Bobby Bauer and Porky Dumart, have been going great guns here and so has the high-scoring second line, on which Bill Cowley, the Hart trophy winner and top point-maker, centres for Roy Conacher and little Eddie Wiseman who had the greatest year of his career last season.

ROSS BACK AT HELM

Now that Cooney Weiland has moved here to run Hershey's American League Club, Ross has returned to active coaching. So far his only problem has been organizing his third line, which now includes Mario, Herb Cain and Pat McReavy. Art Jackson, now listed as the 16th player, appears determined to break in on it somewhere.

The same stout defence will protect goalie Frankie Brimsek, for captain Dit Clapper, who reported at 205, five pounds less than his usual playing weight, again is paired with Dee Smith and Jack Crawford continues to come out with Hush Hollett.

If Reardon is unable to get across the border in time, Jack Shewchuk may be carried as a spare defenceman. That will permit Ross to move Hollett, the super-utility man, up front if there is need.

Ross says okay but 10,000 fans say I'm blind."

The second game of the total-points, home-and-home series will be played in Toronto.

Metcalfe Takes Western Players For N.Y. Rovers

WINNIPEG, Oct. 30—(CP)—Coach Fred Metcalfe and 12 players of New York Rovers of the eastern United States amateur hockey league, rolled across North Dakota Wednesday night while at Winnipeg names of the players, kept a dark secret for weeks, were released.

Lester Patrick, manager of New York Rangers of the National league, who operate Rovers as a training unit, said the players, all from Manitoba and Saskatchewan, who received their passports to play in the United States are:

Defence: Gordon Davidson and Alex Sandelack, both from Regina Rangers, Dominion senior amateur champions, Ted Colvin of Winnipeg and Walter Kyle, Wilcox, Sask.

Forwards: Bob Kirkpatrick of Regina, with Flin Flon Bombers of the Saskatchewan senior league last season, Hub Macey, Bill Robinson and Lewis Medynski, all from Winnipeg Rangers, Canadian junior champions, Gilbert Nordin of Winnipeg Monarchs, Arthur Kendall of Portage La Prairie Terriers, and Dave Livingstone of Saskatoon Quakers.

Goal: Jack McGill of Saskatoon Quakers' junior team last season.

Metcalfe who piloted Regina Rangers to the Allan Cup victory last spring, will have two other forwards —Bill Dilson and Howie Hollinger—both with Rovers last year.

At the close of the eighth annual Rangers' amateur hockey school here two weeks ago Patrick announced he had one of the best classes in the school's history but declined to reveal names of any players attending. Yesterday he announced the Rovers lineup.

1942 Baseball

CINCINNATI, Oct. 30—(AP)—Baseball may be in mothballs for the winter but Cincinnati Reds made known that the 1942 training season will be somewhat different that that last year—notably that there will be no exhibition games in Havana by either the Reds or Boston Red Sox.

The teams played exhibitions in Havana last spring and in 1940 the Reds journeyed a team of Cuban all-stars there.

Disgust With College Student Morale Sent Blaik Back To Army

Blaik's Army Team Will Give Notre Dame A Tough Tussle

CLOSE to the worst game of football I ever saw was the Yale-Dartmouth game at New Haven last year. Both outfits were dragging bottom. Usually this is one of the toy Letgun's rip-roaringest contests, but 1940 was definitely an off semester. Both teams had been beaten and apparently permanently stunned.

They drowsed and flub-dubbed along each apparently trying to outdo the other, and eventually Dartmouth succeeded. Yale winning the ball game, if, scarcely, the honors.

Knowing the man would be low, and that nobody generally bothers to look up a beaten coach on a Saturday night in a strange town, I began to hunt around for Earl Blaik.

I finally found him alone in one of the special Pullmans parked down on a siding waiting to take the Dartmouth team back to New Hampshire come the witching hour of midnight. He was lying in a berth in his pyjamas although the hour was still early, and he was obviously sick both of body and of soul.

He'd got up from a sick bed to take his team to New Haven, but conversation with him soon revealed that his physical condition was satisfactory enough. The loss of the ball game hadn't hurt him too deeply either. Like all coaches, he'd long since learned to take the bitter with the sweet, but he had no illusions about that particular ball club. He knew it did the best it could with what it had, but it simply didn't have enough.

NO, what had him down was a bigger and more far reaching problem.

He was afraid of the attitude of youth in the civilian college. He was disappointed in it, sick of it, disgusted with it.

Blaik is a West Pointer, an army officer, resigned. Unlike his co-coach, and other half, Fats Ellinger, who was denied a commission after being an All-America guard because they said he had an athletic heart, Blaik went all the way through, was commissioned, served with troops and resigned because his family needed him in business.

But even in civilian clothes, he talks and thinks and comports himself as an officer. Even to his Dartmouth players, he was strictly "Mr. Blaik."

The talk of war was in the air at the time, and on every campus in the land it was a controversial issue. The majority of students apparently wanted no part of it—Dartmouth's being no exception. There were mass meetings, pacifistic parades, speeches, letters to the Vox Pop columns of the college newspapers.

The Dartmouth coach—West Pointbred—was shocked, disillusioned, disgusted. How could there be any spirit, any fight, any loyalty for a football team, a college, or anything else worth fighting for and living for, if, first of all, there wasn't quick, complete and eager loyalty to the nation when challenged.

Where was our manhood?

Where our courage and guts?

I knew that night he was through with civilian football coaching. He didn't say so. The West Point pals was still three months in the distance. But it was obvious that a man of his character and, likewise, incidentally, a man of independent means wouldn't continue in an atmosphere that was so painful to him. He'd lost not patience with but faith in, the material he worked with.

PATRIOTIC DUTY

WEST Point came back for him. They put the job up to him as a patriotic duty. It wasn't helping the morale of the service they told him, to have whole generations of Cadets moving on into the army after having been kicked all over the lot by everybody else in anything—football included.

And so he went back to the Army, passing his Dartmouth mantle on to his good friend Tuss McLaughry, who was barely hanging on at Brown.

Whether he was right or wrong about the civilian college spirit, he found at the Point the spirit he was familiar with. The Cadets are soldiers. They've volunteered to serve their country.

Blaik went to work.

The man's a great coach—a precision coach, but a great one. Army football affairs had run down, but his skill and that spirit have brought them up to this week-end unbeaten and unbeaten. Notre Dame will probably end that seasonal record, but it's practically miraculous already, for Army was right on the floor.

But watch it next year, and another year, and maybe for a lot of years thereafter. Army'll go back to the top under Blaik. He never belonged anywhere else. He was like a fish out of water away from that military spirit and discipline.

Watch the fight in that Army team Saturday.

"Did I have SOME party, kid! You should have seen the way they stared at me last night!"

Jim Henry Holds Dutton's Snipers

PORT ARTHUR, Oct. 30.—(CP)—The old Ranger magic flooded back here Wednesday night paralysing New York Americans and giving Frank Boucher's blueshirts an 8-3 victory in the third and final game of their exhibition series.

The victory left the Manhattan rivals all square, each with a win and a tie. Americans won 2-1 and played to a 1-1 tie in games staged on Winnipeg ice.

The exhibition drew slightly more than 2,000 fans.

Rookies fired the first shots in the Rangers' deadly barrage, but it was the "old guard" who made the victory so decisive. After Norm Thatlin and Norm Burns, both newcomers, had put Rangers ahead in the first period, Lynn Patrick, with three counters, Bryan Hextall, Phil Watson and Art Coulter whistled shots past Earl Robertson, veteran in the American net.

Buzz Boll, Murray Armstrong and Billy Benson scored the goals that kept Amerks in the picture until Rangers pulled away in the middle stanza. Aggressors in the opening few minutes of play, Red Dutton's squad faded as the game progressed, unable to cope with the fine passing and tight defensive work of the Rangers.

It was the defrosting of Jim Henry, potential successor to Dave Kerr, however, that kept Americans at a respectable goal level. In a game that featured a free-wheeling style of hockey, Henry made a big hit with the Lakehead fans.

The double-lineman system was given a further trial at the game, Hollis Plinton supplemented with two referees, one to face off the puck only. The linesmen worked from rink opposite each blue line.

NEW YORK, Oct. 30.—(AP)—A winter golfing tour that promises to be the richest and most extensive in the history of the Professional Golfers' Association was outlined Wednesday by Fred Corcoran, tournament manager of the P.G.A.

More than $100,000 in prizes will be offered pros with the $10,000 Miami, Fla., open Dec. 11-14 and the $10,000 Los Angeles open Jan. 9-12 standing out.

At least three new tournaments are on tap, one of them a $5,000 open at Harlingen, Tex., Dec. 26-32, ringing down the curtain on professional golf's 1941 campaign during which an all-time high of $500,000 in stakes was reached.

The Western Open championship, one of the country's outstanding titular events, again will be played on the winter swing, this time at Phoenix, Ariz., Feb. 6-8.

West Pointers Really Convinced

WEST POINT, N.Y., Oct. 30.—(AP)—There is a bedsheet hanging from outside an upperclass dormitory each of the U.S. military academy today which announces flatly and conclusively: "We've bet our britches against Navy Dance."

This is one way of describing the entire cadet corps' attitude this week. The army coaches have been trying to scare the boys for days that Notre Dame has all the physical equipment to knock their ears off Saturday. But the players and students just won't believe them.

FRENCH-CANADIAN ART EXPLAINED

Rural Residents Must Make Use Of Native Products

Value Of Handicrafts In Life Of People Is Stressed At Congress

Handicrafts, as expression of the history, tradition and custom of a people, must play an increasingly large part in the daily lives of the French-Canadians, A. O. Beriau of Quebec City told members of the French-Canadian Association of Alberta, at the Wednesday afternoon session of their two-day congress in the Memorial hall.

To ensure that the residents of rural districts are self-sufficient, they must make full use of the lumber, wool, and flax available, in addition to their farming, he stated. Mr. Beriau is director of handicrafts and household economies for the Quebec government.

Mr. Beriau praised the return of many French-Canadians in Quebec, to handicrafts, as a means of furnishing their homes, and providing their clothing, to a degree only surpassed during the early part of the century. "For example," he stated, "more Quebec homes now have the hooked rugs which are typical of the country, and the people are getting away from linoleums which are both characterless and in bad taste."

BEAUTIFY HOMES

He spoke of the drapes, linens, wall hanging, bed spreads, crocheted and hooked rugs which are now to be seen in almost every home in the eastern province. "The same can and should be true of rural homes elsewhere in the dominion, including the prairie provinces," he stated.

The "centure flechee", the famous hand-woven belt fashioned in an arrow design and worn by the "habitants", has come to be a symbol of French-Canadian life, Mr. Beriau said. "It is a token of memory," he said, "and should be treasured always."

With greater centralisation of industry, he stated, rural girls and boys are too apt to seek "the artificiality of city life," he said, "and there is danger that we may lose our national character and reject our customs and forms of thought."

"We must retain our old values," the speaker declared. "We can only develop materially and characterisically by returning to our older methods, and providing on the farm all those things necessary for self-sufficiency."

FOR RURAL POPULATIONS

During the past years, the handicrafts methods have been greatly improved, said Mr. Beriau, who himself vastly simplified the looms for daily use in the homes. "But the task is far from finished," he said. "Every home should be equipped with a loom and a spinning wheel," he said. "They should be introduced into the farm houses in the prairies and elsewhere in Canada, to increase artistry and skill and self-sufficiency for rural populations."

He pointed out that the handicraft work is done for home use, rather than as a hobby or for commercial uses in Quebec. Illustrating his theme, Mr. Beriau showed many pieces of handicraft work completed by Quebec farm women, and stated that the methods employed have been handed down from generation to generation.

Presentation of a hooked rug was made to Dr. Beauchemin, on behalf of the A.C.F.A., and other gifts were presented on behalf of the French-Canadians in Quebec, by Mr. Beriau.

DONATES PRIZE

Director of research for the Searle Grain Co., Ltd., Major H. G. L. Strange of Winnipeg spoke briefly, and praised the furtherance of handicraft work in rural groups. He announced that the Searle Grain Company would provide a $250 prize for the best handicraft work done in a rural home in Alberta.

J. M. Fontaine, farmer in the St. Paul district, also spoke. Mr. P. Hogue presided at the afternoon session.

During the evening meeting, the speaker was Rev. M. Baudoux, of Prud'homme, Sask., and delegate of the Permanent Committee for French Survival.

The committee, he said, is a unique organization consecrated to the survival and spreading of the true French spirit across the continent. "We must preserve that traditional virtue, and always work toward our high ideals," he said, urging the people to make their homes attractive and comfortable and through their own work, meet their own needs.

MUST WORK HAPPILY

"We must establish the law of work, and we must work happily and accomplish our aims happily," he said. Father Baudoux called attention to the 5,000 French-Canadians in Edmonton and Calgary, and stated that between 75 and 80 per cent of the rural population in Alberta is French-Canadian.

Taking part in the program were the following singers, Leopold Toupin, Fernande Prefontaine, Adrienne Garneau, and Marcell Lorieau from Legal. J. Mireault, Rev. Father Bouchard of Falher, and Theresa Vallee and Madonna Huriubise of Edmonton. Maurice Lavallee of Edmonton was master of ceremonies and J. Norbert of Bonnyville, chairman.

The conference will conclude Thursday evening. J. O. Laforce, C.N.R. colonization agent, and delegate of the St. Jean Baptiste Society will speak during the morning session of Thursday, and speakers during the afternoon will be Rev. A. D'Eschambault of St. Boniface, and Miss Eveline LeBlanc of the federal department of agriculture. Election of officers will also take place, and a banquet at the Corona hotel will end the congress.

CO-OPERATION SAID NEED OF FRENCH-CANADIANS

Necessity of co-operative organization among French-Canadians was urged by J. O. Laforce of Montreal, addressing the Thursday morning session of the two-day congress of the French-Canadian Association of Alberta. Mr. Laforce is C.N.R. colonization agent and representative of the St. Jean Baptiste Society in Montreal.

Maintaining that through "pont politics" in past years, "the commercial, financial, industrial and agricultural resources of Quebec province have been allowed to pass out of the hands of the French-Canadian majority to outsiders," Mr. Laforce warned against similar circumstances occurring elsewhere in the Dominion.

The speaker was introduced by Rev. J. A. Normandeau of Edmonton, pioneer Alberta missionary, and Jerome Lambert of Picardville acted as chairman.

At noon the delegates visited the brewery of the North West Brewing Co. Ltd.

During the afternoon elections and addresses by Miss Eveline LeBlanc and Rev. A. D'Eschambault took place. Miss LeBlanc is attached to the consumer section of the Federal department of agriculture marketing service, and Father D'Eschambault is a delegate from St. Boniface.

The congress will conclude with a banquet in the Corona hotel on Thursday night.

The production is being presented to raise funds for further performances to be given by the board for the benefit of the armed forces. The board is forming an "entertainment pool" from which local artists may be drawn at any time to take part in benefit performances.

Florida Couple Secure Colored Films Of North

After a successful three weeks' hunting and filming expedition in the Brazeau Lake area, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Lerner, Miami, Florida, were completing preparations in Edmonton Wednesday to leave for their home.

Prior to their trip into the Brazeau Lake area they had spent about a month in the Yukon. With the Lerners on the Brazeau Lake trip were David Duncan, Miami, Warner Bros. photographer, and William Oliver, Calgary photographer. Mr. Oliver had travelled to Africa and Indo-China with the couple on previous expeditions.

The party brought out 12,300 feet of colored motion picture film and about 900 still "shots" taken for Warner Bros.

On the Yukon trip the Lerner party worked for the American Museum of Natural History.

Films taken at Brazeau included scenes of the country and of the Lernerking and shooting big game. It is expected that the film will be released as a series of "shorts" on Canada's scenic beauty and on hunting.

The Lerner party took a Yukon Southern Air Transport plane on their first expedition to the Yukon in August and a United Air Services plane was chartered for the Brazeau Lake trip.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Lerner expressed their praises of the "indescribable" beauty of the mountains.

Vitamins Topic Druggists' Meet

The study of vitamins is just beginning, though their action was recognized as long ago as civilization itself, Dr. E. A. Cliff, nutrition expert of Montreal, told members of the Edmonton Retail Druggists Association at a banquet tendered in his honor at the Corona hotel Tuesday.

Dr. Cliff spoke on the manufacture and use of vitamins B and E. Druggists from as far as Thorhild, Provost and Okotoks were present.

Dr. Cliff referred to the Indians treating scurvy with spruce boughs which recently have been found to contain vitamin C. He told of Greeks treating goitre with ashes from seaweed. Scientists have found that seaweed possesses large amounts of iodine which is now used in treating goitre.

The necessity of vitamin content in the flour is becoming increasingly important, he said. "The time is not far off when all flour will be vitamized," he said.

Other guests at the banquet were A. W. Mathews and Lt. Col. F. A. Stewart Dunn, professor at the University of Alberta.

Frank Lee, president of the Edmonton Retail Druggists Association, presided at the dinner.

Medical Tests Are Taken Here By Air Force Women

Prospective cooks in the Canadian Women's Auxiliary Air Force Thursday were being medically examined and enlisted by officer nurses at the recruiting centre of the R.C.A.F. in the provincial building. The women are from all parts of Northern Alberta.

Those women who pass their medical examinations, and who possess the necessary qualifications, will be mustered on strength without pay, until they report for a month's course of training at Toronto.

On completion of this course they will be posted at various training centres as C.W.A.A.F. personnel attached to the R.C.A.F. They are enlisted for home and overseas service.

Petroleum Expert Confers Here With Minister Of Lands

Following a study of the Turner Valley oil productive capacity, Dr. George Grainger Brown conferred recently with Hon. N. E. Tanner, minister of lands and mines. Dr. Brown examined histories of various wells and their production figures over the last 20 years.

Dr. Brown is professor of chemical engineering at the University of Michigan and later will submit a report on his findings to the government.

He was asked by the Petroleum and Natural Gas Conservation Board to examine all phases of the present production of the Turner Valley field and report his findings.

Various reports were studied, with production and other history. Further material will be supplied him for study and inclusion in his report.

Dr. Brown has returned to Ann Arbor, Michigan, where he will confer with his assistant, Dr. D. L. Klatz, prior to drafting his report.

We are in the fourth decade of the twentieth century.

It Never Fails

Mutual Life Sales Higher

Members of the field force of the Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada were congratulated in a recent head office bulletin on having achieved the objective set for 1941 within the first nine months of the year. The objective was $600,000,000 of business in force, representing an anticipated increase of $15,000,000 for the year. At the end of September business in force had already exceeded $600,100,000 and a further strong increase for the remainder of the year was indicated.

A steady forward movement in insurance buying has been noted throughout the year, reflected both in improved production and increasing business in force.

Comparing the present situation with that in the last war, Mr. W. H. Somerville, general manager of the company, has pointed out that there was a slight reduction in new business in 1915, with a gradual increase in 1916 and a sharp increase in 1917. In the present situation there has been no reduction since 1939. Indications are that the upward movement is beginning to accelerate rapidly.

The healthy position of insurance at this time is attributed by Mr. Somerville to the rapid expansion of industry and the fact that many people formerly idle are now fully and gainfully employed. Curtailment of luxury and instalment buying, and increasing pressure for greater saving are also likely to prove factors in future progress.

THE QUESTION

In view of the disclosures made by President Roosevelt concerning German designs on South and Central America do you think the United States should immediately occupy all bases that would be vital to the defence of the southern part of this hemisphere?

THE ANSWERS

GEORGE JOHNSON, city visitor from the U.S.A.: I'll go one better than that. I am in favor of the United States occupying any and every part of the world that its military and naval experts deem necessary to the defence of the United States. I certainly think all strategic spots in South and Central America should be made part of America's defensive system.

AN AMERICAN with the R.C.A.F. at the No. 3 Manning Depot: It's time we started beating Hitler to the punch and I think we'll be doing the punching from now on. The prestige of the democracies would be raised enormously if South American strategic points were taken under the wing of the U.S.A. navy and army now.

JACK PENNER, cafe manager: The U.S. will not be interested in South American bases until asked to do so by the countries in South America. To do otherwise would destroy the goodwill of these countries. I understand that Brazil, at least, is negotiating with U.S. on steps to be taken in case the world situation warrants certain action in matters of defence of the southern portion of the hemisphere.

Martin Receives Life Membership

Life membership in the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce was conferred on H. Milton Martin, pioneer Edmonton realtor, following 38 years' continuous service to the Chamber, on Wednesday, at the 52nd annual meeting at the Macdonald hotel. A. M. MacDonald, new president, announced the honorary membership, which received unanimous approval at the meeting.

He came to Edmonton from Dawson where he went in 1898 during the gold rush days. Previously he had been in the lumber and mining business in British Columbia, and entered real estate in Edmonton immediately after his arrival in Edmonton.

Prominent in Edmonton public life during his residence here, he is

Getting Around with JOHN OLIVER

NOW that Chief Constable A. G. Shute has issued his annual warning against waxing excessively obstreperous on Hallowe'en, those to whom the warning was issued have obtained false faces and deceptive costumes to conceal their identity and householders have laid in a supply of apples and peanuts to hand out to visitors, the stage appears to be all set for celebration on Friday of this festive occasion.

The eve of the feast of All Saints or All Hallows, on Oct. 31, is really the eve of the summer's end—an end long since past here. The Druids had a great autumn festival which lasted until the next day. It was called the vigil of Samain or Samhain, the god of the dead, who, on this night let loose all his spirits who occupied the bodies of animals during the past year. This accounts for the idea of ghosts, goblins and witches connected with the celebration. The black cat, too, has her place among these superstitions. The Druids held cats sacred and thought they had once been human beings who were changed as punishment for evil deeds.

The custom of going about asking for gifts on Hallowe'en is a survival from the 17th century. The Irish peasants then circulated, asking in the name of St. Columba that fatted calves and black sheep be prepared for the feast. In Irish folklore, Columba (alias the place of Samain, the old lord of the dead of Druid days) Columba was the first priest who succeeded in converting the Picts and founded a monastery on Iona Isle, on the coast of Scotland. St. Samain came to be confused with him. It is the Irish, too, who account for Jack O' Lantern. They tell a story of a man who was so mean that he was not allowed in Heaven. But because of his grateful feeling he was not allowed in Hades so was forced to walk the earth till Judgment Day.

While the Irish had many Hallowe'en customs, these were also popular in other parts of the British Isles, but particularly in Scotland where they survive to this day. In all the Celtic countries it was the season for paying into the future. In Wales this night was known as the weird Three Spirit just as well.

AROUND THE TOWN

Starting in on a whirlwind campaign to consolidate his support for the voting in the November 12 municipal elections Mayor John W. Fry has opened committee rooms at 10028 Jasper avenue.

D. G. McKenzie, president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, has been invited to address the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce when he visits Edmonton next month.

Junior club seed fairs, now being held in various parts of the province are yielding surprisingly good quality samples, according to J. R. Sweeney, deputy minister of agriculture. He declared that many of the exhibits for the Chicago International hay and grain show, in the latter part of November, will be selected from samples at these seed fairs.

Prepared by staff members 3,000 new maps of Alberta have been published by the provincial lands and mines department, it was announced Thursday by John Harvie, deputy minister. The maps, finished in three colors, are available at a nominal charge. A large percentage of the first printing will be forwarded to the Dominion government for use by officials at Ottawa and elsewhere.

Night. In the north of England, it was called Nutcrack Night, when fortunes were told by roasting nuts. In the Highlands of Scotland bonfires were made before every house. Feasts were given and after the food died down each person added a stone to a circle around the dying fire.

In the morning early, they looked to see if any stone had been moved. If they were, woe betide the person who had moved it. During the evening there were tests to tell who the young people would marry. They pulled kale stalks, sowed hempseed, roasted nuts and made many other tests of the fates which were supposed to be active that night. The poet Robbie Burns wrote much about the customs of his country, but the references to Hallowe'en seem more numerous than any other. It was undoubtedly a topsy-turvy night and made more so by the running about of the young people of the neighborhood.

Today it has lost much of its superstition, and that it is doubtful if any young lady of this century would admit that she was guilty of the foolishness which is revealed in the following directions:

Turn your boots toward the street. Leave your garters on your feet. Put your stockings on your head. You'll dream of the one you're going to wed.

The occasion now is one for wearing masks and funny costumes and eating for apple with peanuts largely displacing the fruit, as they are cheaper and satisfy the eaters just as well.

Class elections in the junior, senior and sophomore groups were being conducted from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. at the University of Alberta Thursday. Max G. Stewart is in charge of the election.

King Edward Park and District community league will hold its first social event of this season on Saturday evening, Nov. 1, in the King Edward Park community hall, 81 street and 80 avenue. The program will take the form of an indoor carnival.

Following inspection of training facilities at the Edmonton Garrison, Capt. E. Jacobs, G.S.O. 3, in charge of training, M.D. No. 13, and Capt. R. P. Fitzgerald, G.S.O. 3, in charge of trade schools, for Thursday for an inspection of similar facilities at the Camrose basic training centre.

Commanding officer of No. 3 Manning Depot, R.C.A.F., Wing Comm. under J. Cyril Malone will be the guest speaker at the dinner meeting of the Kinsmen Club in the Macdonald hotel Friday at 6.45 p.m. He will speak on the organization of the depot and the part it is playing in the British Commonwealth Air Training Scheme.

Last plane to be flown out of the north equipped with floats arrived in the city Wednesday afternoon when North Sawle, pilot of the United Air Services, arrived from Prince Albert. Thirteen of the 14 planes of the company are now here awaiting overhauling and equipping with Ski-Lanes. Seven of the planes here will depend upon the speed of freezing and the amount of snow that will fall to permit landing on the frozen waters. It may take from two to six weeks, officials say.

Mrs. John Nathaniel Condie, 10626 106 avenue, died in Calgary Wednesday, according to word received here. The remains will be brought back to Edmonton for interment. A son, Jack Condie, left Edmonton on night for the southern city, on receiving word of her death. Other survivors are a son, William, of Niagara Falls; two daughters, Mrs. J. F. Williamson of Edmonton, and Mrs. H. Lee Hamilton of Calgary. She was predeceased by her husband in April of this year. Foster and McGarvey, Ltd., funeral directors, are in charge of arrangements.

An active month of work was reported by Humane Officer Jones when members of the Alberta Humane Society held their regular meeting this recently. Work done included 24 investigations, 26 warnings given, 67 telephone calls responded to, and 3 summonses issued. During the month 1,225 horses, 4,450 hogs and 1,070 sheep were inspected. All parking plants, horse sales, poultry houses and the Market Square were inspected.

Former Attorney To Gandhi To Speaks In City Thursday Night

Guest of the Edmonton branch of the Canadian Institute of International Affairs, H. S. L. Polak, former attorney to Mahatma Gandhi, arrived in the city Thursday.

Mr. Polak will deliver an address to members of the Institute at a dinner tendered in his honor at the Macdonald Thursday evening. The address will follow the dinner scheduled for 6.45 p.m.

Mr. Polak was born in England and studied at London University and the Ecole de Commerce, Neufchatel, Switzerland. From 1913 to 1916 he was in South Africa and was by a time actively as attorney to Mahatma Gandhi.

ACTIVE IN STRUGGLE

During this period, as a close friend of Gandhi, he was active in the struggle for civil rights for Indians in South Africa.

Since 1917, Mr. Polak has practised as a solicitor and privy council agent in London, particularly for Indian appeals. He has made frequent visits to India, Burma and Ceylon.

Since 1918 he has been representative in London for the "Leader", one of the most prominent Liberal dailies in India.

Subject of his address will be "The Indian Political Situation and the War."

The people of India have placed their hatred of Nazism far above any internal differences they may have, Mr. Polak said.

Mr. Polak is touring Canada in an effort to bring to the Canadian people a more intimate conception and understanding of the people of India.

He stated he was anxious to see the day when Indian natives could participate in the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan as guests of Canada.

INDIA'S ARMY

Today India has a dual 2½ army of over a million men, equipped 90 per cent with home equipment, Mr. Polak said. They are eager to do their part in stamping out Hitlerism. Troops have already distinguished themselves in Iraq, Iran, Tobruk and many other places in Africa.

"Mahatma Gandhi and I disagree on the war situation but his sense of humor and comradeship is such that our friendship established 30 years ago is as warm as ever," Mr. Polak said.

"Gandhi's hatred for Nazism is such that he will do nothing to impede its destruction even though he disagrees with doing it by the use of force and weapons," he said. Love is the very opposite to Nazism and it is bound to conquer in the end. Mr. Polak quoted Gandhi as saying in a recent letter.

Gay Affairs To Mark Season Of Hallowe'en

By SHIRLEY C. WEIR

HALLOWE'EN, that weird eve when a galaxy of sinister looking witches, black cats, goblins and ghosts descend en masse on the city, is to be filled this year with fun and adventure, not only for the children, who will prowl the streets dressed as wild Indians, pirates and gypsies, but also for the grown-ups who will make merry in many ways during the whole week-end.

One of the brightest and gayest spots on Saturday evening will be the lovely main dining room of the Macdonald hotel, where members of the Lady Aberdeen League of the V.O.N. will entertain at a Hallowe'en supper dance. It is expected that this affair will attract a large number of Edmonton's smart set. Proceeds will be used to further the splendid work of the V.O.N.

The Memorial Hall will be graced with pumpkins, witches and colorful streamers on Friday evening, when C.A.V.U. Club members entertain at their annual "Freeze-Up" dance. Patting for this dance, which is being put on in aid of war charities, are Mrs. James A. Bell and Mrs. Grant McConachie.

The merry spirit of Hallowe'en will descend even into the armories, where the sergeants of the garrison are entertaining at a dance. Arrangements are in the hands of Sgt. Major J. Watt, Sgt. T. Tim and Sgt. A. McNally.

Residents of Garneau community in the city, will enjoy their own special Hallowe'en fun on Friday evening, when members of the Friendship Club will be hosts at a large masquerade party. His Worship, Mayor J. W. Fry, has promised to be on hand, at this affair, to present a prize for the best costume.

Yolando Club members, too, have been busy this past week making elaborate preparations for their Hallowe'en dance, which will be held out at St. Albert Community hall on Friday evening. Colorful streamers and Hallowe'en novelties will provide a gay setting.

Laughter and party time mood will prevail on Saturday evening, when Briercrest Saddle Club members will be hosts at a gay affair at the Corona hotel. The occasion is the annual dinner and dance of the club.

In addition to all this delightful miscellany of affairs which spell an enchanting week-end for Edmonton citizens, many private parties have been planned by the younger set. Here, bobbing for apples, fortune telling, and "spooky" games will become the order of the evening, as young Edmonton, too, takes advantage of this hallowed eve.

Although not credited as Hallowe'en celebrations, many other attractive affairs share in the week-end's social spotlight. Notable among these is the "Goodwill Dance" being held in the officers mess at the Prince of Wales armouries, and to which officers of the navy, army and air force, have been invited to attend. Capt. T. B. T. Hewett has charge of arrangements for this affair.

Expected to attract many on Saturday afternoon, is the annual membership tea of the Y.W.C.A. Here members of the board of directors and the personnel of the staff will have the opportunity to renew acquaintances with members and to welcome new members of the Y. W. C. A. The affair will be held in the main building of the "Y." Patrons of the affair will be Mrs. John Campbell Bowen, Mrs. William Aberhart, Mrs. John W. Fry and Mrs. W. A. R. Kerr.

On Friday afternoon, Keemi Club members will mark their annual birthday tea. Mrs. J. H. Warren has graciously consented to loan her home at 10137 Clifton Place for the occasion.

Mrs. W. T. Rice Is President Of Eastwood Bowlers

Mrs. W. T. Rice was named president when the members of the Eastwood Ladies' Lawn Bowling Club met for their annual meeting recently. Other officers named include vice-president, Mrs. J. U. Primeau; treasurer, Mrs. J. Middleton; secretary, Mrs. W. H. Carey; games convener, Mrs. H. Wellon; social convener, Mrs. T. de Bourcier; auditors, Mrs. F. Mencer, Mrs. P. Smith, Mrs. M. Gaetz.

Plans were formulated for a court whist to be held in Eastwood Community hall on November 15, and for the annual banquet to be held at the Royal George hotel on Dec. 22. It was served by Mrs. T. de Bourcier.

Quebec Craft Is Displayed At Congress

PRESENTING splendid examples of the types of handicrafts done in Quebec, an exhibit of French Canadian work is at present on display in the Memorial Hall. The exhibit is being shown in conjunction with the 11th congress of the French-Canadian Association of Alberta.

Fabrics used in the work have been made from flax and wool obtainable in the rural districts, and which are spun on the many Quebec spinning wheels, and later woven on the privately-owned looms.

The handicrafts are made by the Quebec women for use in their homes, rather than as a hobby or for commercial use.

Included in the exhibit are bedspreads which have been woven with contrasting wools. One of them is in a royal blue and white, the while being so delicately designed that it resembles a superimposed lace.

Wall hangings in embroidered natural linen, hooked rugs showing typical scenes in Quebec province, crocheted rag rugs with artistically designed patterns, and other woven rugs are to be seen, as well as a wide variety of table linens.

WIDE WOVEN BELT

The "ceinture flechee", the famous wide woven belt in arrow design, which is worn by the habitants, is shown in an attractive variety of colors, and a wall picture of a typical Quebec woman of the rural districts, embroidered in soft tones on natural linen.

The exhibit was brought to Edmonton by Mr. A. O. Berlau, director of handicrafts and household economics in Quebec province.

Dorothy Dix Says:

Dear Miss Dix—We have often heard older people say that for every man and woman born into the world there is a predestined mate, some one who would come up to all of every man's and woman's desires in a wife or husband. If this is true, how may we go about finding our mates? A BOY AND A GIRL.

Dorothy Dix

Answer:

Among the teeming millions of human beings it may well be that there is an ideal mate for every man and woman, but I doubt it, because I think that the average man and woman have no fixed idea of what they want in their husbands and wives and that they do not know themselves what they want from day to day.

How true this is you can judge from the fact that when a young couple get married they have a free choice in the selection of their mates and they pick out what they want at the time. A man chooses a girl for his mate because she is pretty, because she is vivacious, because she is a good dancer, because she is domestic or for any other of a dozen different attractions. A girl marries a man because he has "a line," because he has curly hair or broad shoulders, because he is gay and shows her a good time, because he has a well-paying job and can give her a good home.

But in one out of every six marriages in the United States, in picking out the ones they thought were their mates the young couples guessed wrong and sue for divorce. The qualities they thought they wanted in each other do not suit them after all. The little ways and mannerisms they thought they could admire forever have palled upon them. They thought they could listen to each other's conversation for all time, but they yawn in each other's faces. And, as a general thing, they find somebody else whom they think are their predestined mates. So there you are.

I think human nature will have to be a lot less changeable than it is now if the predestined mate theory ever fits in. Anyway, it would be a mere matter of luck if you ever encountered your affinity who might be a lady or gentleman from darkest Africa or the North Pole and quite away from where you live.

The really mated couples that I have known have been the men and women who married likable people in their own class and who then set themselves to work to make themselves the kind of wives and husbands that the men and women to whom they were married desired. They made a lot of sacrifices and did a lot of adapting in order to make themselves agreeable companions.

They cultivated tastes for spinach or caviar. They went to parties when they would rather have stayed at home and rested their feet. They listened to symphony concerts when they would have preferred jazz. They learned to play golf when they loathed it. They kept up with each other and took an interest in each other's pursuits and amusements. And in the end people said of them: How wonderfully they are mated!

But they knew that they didn't find their mates. They made them.

DOROTHY DIX.

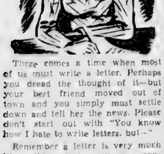
What To Do



There comes a time when most of us must write a letter. Perhaps you dread the thought of it—but your best friend moved out of town and you simply must settle down and tell her the news. Please don't start out with "You know how I hate to write letters, but—"

Remember a letter is very much like talking—just carry on a conversation, and you won't even be interrupted. Avoid trite phrases like "the weather has been fine," "wish you were here." There are many ways of expressing exactly those thoughts so here's your chance to allow your imagination to run riot.

The proper touch at the end of your friendly letter will bring forth a prompt reply, so avoid "yours in haste" and similar phrases. Compliment your reader and let your letter express your personality. Inject your favorite phrases and mannerisms into your writing so that the person to whom you are writing feels as though she had just visited with you. She will feel this way if your letter expresses you.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Words should make pictures in the child's mind. The same word—the same picture.

If we ever expect a child to learn to understand language, we ought to adopt practices and be consistent in using them. We dare not muddle up the little child by using all the various terms which may be applicable to a given situation, we should use the same term each time.

Just the little ceremony of closing the eyes in preparation for sleep ought to be initiated for the baby by the pleasant suggestion, "Go to sleep, baby darling." Then, though we close the door, we have left baby with the feeling that going to sleep means drifting off into comfortable slumber. When we find him wakeful we can close the door with, "Go to sleep," and he knows we are not punishing him but merely suggesting slumber.

These simple words will make a far greater impression upon him than if we let our fancy roam and deluge him with an avalanche of suggestions to, "close his little peepers," or "go sleepy-bye" as the mood impells us. How then can the poor baby know what we want him to do? We're talking to ourselves, not to him.

While the baby is learning to eat, we ought to make use of some terms which at their sound will put into action the behavior for which we are striving. "Lift your spoon, open your mouth, chew, swallow," these can be made meaningful to the child if they accompany the activities which they describe.

When the child goes out to play we ought to use some familiar warnings which shall implant the right ideas in the child's mind.

"Stay in the yard," "Play on the sidewalk," can't be misunderstood. But if we keep yelling, "Don't go across the street," "Don't leave the yard," the "cross the street, leave the yard" admonitions make the definite suggestions very little restrained by that weak word, "don't."

Almost any foreign-born person can pick up what we try to say to him if we use the same words repeatedly. The baby is just learning our langage, too, and we don't want to confuse him by the use of so many different words for the same act that he never knows what it is all about.

When he has mastered a few words, then we can add new ones and build up a vocabulary. At first we do better to speak a limited pigeon-English.

If you want a copy of my leaflet, "Development of Speech," write to me in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped return envelope to facilitate mailing.

Tiny Tot's Nautical Ensemble

Let her "join the navy" in this tiny-miss frock with its matching sailor cap! Your own designer, Anne Adams, planned Pattern 4765 to be made in several versions. In one, this panelled, front-buttoned little frock may have a sailor collar trimmed with two rows of braid and of contrasting fabric . . . and a gob hat made of contrast like the collar! In the other dress, little revers embroidered with stars are used instead of a collar. Complete directions for embroidering the transfer motif are included in the Sewing Instructor. Both the frock and the cap are easy to sew and take so little material . . . why not make several variations for a little sailor lass? They'll be practical for the whole season.

Pattern 4765 is available in children's sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6, dress, takes $2\frac{1}{8}$ yards 35 inch fabric; cap and collar, $\frac{5}{8}$ yard contrast.

Send 20 cents in coins for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly Size, Name, Address and Style Number.

Send your order to The Edmonton Bulletin, Pattern Department, 60 Front St. West, Toronto, Ontario.

Please allow a week or ten days for delivery.

Walking is at the same time one of the best, and the least expensive, of outdoor exercises. When only one hour a day may be spent in exercising, then there is no other exercise which will be as pleasing and beneficial as walking. It is possible to walk from three to four miles in an hour and there is something almost magical in the vitality which can be developed in an hour's walk.

Walking is the most natural exercise, for man was building up health and endurance by putting one foot before the other long before the invention of exercising equipment seen in the modern gymnasium. It is also a very easy exercise—so easy that almost any one can do it. Moreover, it may be easily adjusted to the strength and the vitality of the person attempting it. The one who is in good condition will be able to make it a very vigorous exercise by increasing the pace to a rapid walk and by increasing the distance covered, while the one who is in poor condition may stay within the limits of his strength by walking not quite so fast and walking shorter distances.

Even those who seem to be low in endurance upon starting to walk will find that their strength increases slowly but surely, by regular walking. Real endurance can only come from the uses of exercises which build vitality by a systematic repetition of such exercises. Those who seem to be enervated, or all tired out, and who complain of little endurance, will find that the simple repetition of the movements made in walking will bring the desired vigor and vitality. It is not by chance that the one who walks regularly, day after day, finds himself steadily growing stronger.

At first glance, it might seem that the chief benefit from walking would be to the legs. Of course, the muscles of the legs do benefit to a remarkable degree, but the value of walking is not confined to the legs alone. The practice of walking is also of value to the lungs, especially if deep breathing exercises are practiced as one walks. While you are striding along, remember to breathe in deeply enough and to exhale with enough thoroughness so as to fill the lungs with clean, fresh air, and to empty them as much as possible of stale air. As one author put it, "Try to breathe in the cellar of your lungs instead of just in the attic."

Walking has an excellent effect upon the general circulation of both blood and lymph. As the muscles contract, they exert a squeezing effect upon the veins and lymph channels, thus pushing both the blood fluid and lymphatic fluid back toward the heart. With the stimulation of circulation, waste materials are removed more rapidly, and each part shares in an improved circulation.

Walking is also of benefit by causing a better digestion, better metabolism, deeper and more restful sleep, and better nerves. In many instances, those who have been great walkers have lived for a long time, enjoying splendid health even after middle age. Such cases indicate that one may have an excellent chance of living longer and growing stronger by this simple exercise of walking.

All questions regarding Health and Diet will be answered. Large, stamped, self-addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service, 1151 West 6th St., Los Angeles, Calif.

Economy Easy If Dessert Is Cheesy

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

Canadian cheddar cheese is one of the concentrated foods now being shipped to England. Although England is to receive a large quantity of our Canadian cheese production, all of it in the form of cheddar, there is an abundance of other kinds available for the Canadian table. Today, Canadian cheese makers are producing excellent Camembert, Swiss, Brie, blue, Liederkranz and others. Processed packaged cheeses of all types also will be available in normal quantities and the cocktail cream spreads include a blue type in addition to pine-apple, pimiento and relish varieties. Plentiful supplies of Italian-style and Canadian style grated cheese are also available for marketing in this country. Serve cheese often, with fruit, for dessert. It's economical.

STUFFED FRUITS

Large black grapes, chilled, seeded and stuffed with one of the cocktail cream spreads are delicious. Liederkranz cheese may be used as a stuffing for figs or for large prunes.

Bartlett pears may be halved and filled with mounds of cocktail cream spreads.

Cottage cheese served with tart jelly and crisp, slightly salted crackers, all in separate compartments on a tray, is another dessert specialty. Cottage cheese salad is a salad dessert specialty for bridge luncheon parties. By using yellow and green vegetable coloring, you can turn this salad into a buffet supper novelty. Perfect for Hallowe'en too.

COTTAGE CHEESE SALAD

(Serves 4 to 6)

One cup cottage cheese, 1 cup salad dressing, 1 tablespoon gelatin, 3 tablespoons cold water, 1 chopped pimiento, 1 chopped green pepper, ½ chopped cucumber, cayenne, salt, ½ pint cream, whipped, yellow and green vegetable coloring.

Mix cottage cheese with dressing, add gelatin which has been soaked in cold water and melted over hot water, pimiento, green pepper and cucumber, finely chopped. Season highly with salt and cayenne and add whipped cream. To ¾ of mixture add a little yellow coloring, and to remaining ¼ of mixture add a little green coloring. Pour in ear of corn mold with green on outside like the husks and at one end for the stem. Chill.

Tomorrow's Menu

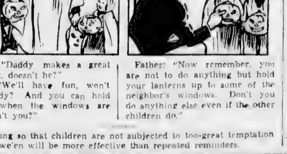
LUNCHEON: Black bean soup, frankfurter rings, hard enriched rolls, apple slices spread with cream cheese, tea, milk.

DINNER: Pan-broiled round steak, lemon butter, mashed potatoes, steamed broccoli, whole-wheat bread, grapes, assorted Canadian cheese and slightly salted crackers, coffee, milk.

Points For Parents

By EDYTH THOMAS WALLACE



This — Not This

Jean: "Daddy makes a great big ghost, doesn't he?"

Bill: "We'll have fun, won't we, Daddy? And you can hold me up when the windows are high, can't you?"

Father: "Now remember, you are not to do anything but hold your lanterns up to some of the neighbor's windows. Don't you do anything else even if the other children do."

Planning so that children are not subjected to too-great temptation on Hallowe'en will be more effective than repeated reminders.

Beautiful Orchids Grow in Simple Glass Garden

Pan of Water Provides Humidity

Yes, you can actually grow your own orchid corsage! Luscious white and pink orchids bloom gloriously in a terrarium!

The trick of growing them successfully is to make them feel at home. So provide tropical humidity by fitting a cake pan in the bottom of the terrarium and filling it with water. Across this, lay a few wooden slats for the orchid pots to rest on.

Keep your orchids out of direct sunlight, in a room where temperature is moderate. If nights are colder than 55 degrees, cover terrarium with a cloth.

To make your terrarium even lovelier put in pots of ivy and asparagus fern. Their twining greenery conceals the slats.

And if you want more terrarium thrills, grow a beautiful begonia garden in a narrow-necked glass jug! It's wonderfully simple to make but mystifies everyone.

Our 32-page booklet tells how to make gorgeous winter-flowering plants bloom NOW, in all kinds of terrariums, how to raise orchids, gardenias, begonias, violets, many other flowering and foliage plants, dish gardens.

Send 15c in coins for your copy of "Glass Gardens and Novelty Indoor Gardens" to the Edmonton Bulletin Home Service, 60 Front St. West, Toronto, Ont. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and name of booklet.

Please allow a week or ten days for delivery.

Reports Given Annual Meet City Chamber

for its motto during the coming difficult war year the words of Her Majesty the Queen in a recent address in which she urged that "we go forward hand in hand to build that better world for our children."

"I for one, have never been in favor of singing at any public body," said the new president.

"Regardless of what our politics may be, I believe that when a government has been elected it is our government and we should co-operate with it in every possible way," he added, stating that he included civic, provincial and federal governments in his remarks.

In view of the great importance of Edmonton as an agricultural centre, the addition of leading farmers of the district to the membership of the Chamber was advocated by the new president. Rest room facilities for visiting farmers and their families and an information bureau to assist farmers to solve their problems, were new departures in Chamber work suggested by Mr. MacDonald.

MISSING MEMBERS

President MacDonald voiced regret at the chamber's loss during the past year of Frank Pepper, through death, and John M. Imrie, through illness.

L. C. Howard, Sexsmith, an Edmonton business man in 1901, was introduced to the gathering, as was his son A. C. Grahame Howard, R.C.A.F., now stationed in Edmonton.

Seated at the head table were: Retiring President Thomson, President-elect MacDonald, W. H. Sterne, W. A. MacDonald, vice-president and manager, and director of the Edmonton Journal, Charles E. Campbell, owner and publisher of The Edmonton Bulletin, and H. Milton Martin, a past president of the Edmonton Board of Trade.

The report of President Thomson follows in full:

The Edmonton Chamber of Commerce is now well over the half, century milestone in its career in western development. This fact inspires us today to predict for the next fifty years another career of success and service to our great and extensive community equal and greater than has distinguished our past. Edmonton is past the trial stage and has become one of the financial, manufacturing and distributing centres of the nation and the men of Edmonton today are as capable and enthusiastic for the development as their predecessors.

We open our annual report with a general survey of economic conditions for our province.

PRODUCTION

The problem today is to find production, not markets, for bacon, dairy products and eggs. The change is due to expanding demand for foodstuffs in Britain. Canada is the only source of supply for these necessities. At the same time as the British demand has been increasing, the rise in employment in Canada has brought an increase in domestic consumption. Added to these factors has been the rising level of agricultural prices in the United States, which has enlarged the market for several Canadian farm products and influenced prices upward.

NO INFLATION

While there have been few spectacular changes in food prices since the war began two years ago, food prices in general have not yet reached a point where they approach inflationary difficulties. During June, 1941, retail food prices averaged 80 percent of the high prices of 1929, compared with 74 percent of the same prices in 1940.

In this connection it is interesting and instructive to note that wages in the first six months of 1941 reached an annual rate of $1,272, or $192 more than for the same period in 1940. During the 12-year interval, 1929-1941, hours of work have been reduced and rates of pay increased, with the result that 1941 earnings of Canadian workers are approximately 5 percent higher than in 1929. With food prices on the whole 21 percent below those of 1929, the purchasing power of the worker is substantially better.

There are other factors that indicate the healthy condition of Edmonton's business. Increases in the note circulation of the Bank of Canada have brought the total to a new high level of $227,000,000 at the beginning of September. This more than favorably compares with $320,000,000 a year ago and $186,000,000 when the war broke out. There could not be a better proof of the expansion of Canadian business. Employment, too, is a safe measure of economic health and the index for July 1, 1941, was 158 against 125 a year ago—in fact, an all-time high.

With the crisis of the second world war thrust upon us, Canadians see new plants springing up dramatically in all parts of the country. Manufacturing of extensive time luxuries have been transformed into war-time necessities. This outstanding emphasizes Canada's outstanding position as a producer of war supplies and establishes the coming of age of Canadian industry.

After the war there is calculated to be a great advance in organization and volume of industry in Edmonton a few days ago, Canada is taking a new place in the British Empire.

An important change is taking place in the economic set-up of Alberta. The province, owing to War and varied resources, is developing a complex industrial life as well as the primary agricultural life that has been the foundation of our development so far.

In addition to a vast grain trade, Alberta livestock industry is developing into major proportions. And when we add growing coal trade and the production of oil, the fur trade and the gold mining industry of the territory on the northern border of Alberta, we get a true and varied picture of Alberta in the Canadian federation.

Possibly a few statistics will demonstrate more eloquently than words the favorable condition of Canadian industry at the present time and we give eleven diagnostic citations:

Index of wholesale sales (1935-1939), basis 100—July, 1941, 147; July, 1940, 112.

National Income—Eight months, 1941, $3,446,000,000; eight months, 1940, $3,118,000,000.

Railway Revenues — June, 1941, $45,000,000; June, 1940, $37,000,000

Index of Employment—July 1, 1941, 191; January 1, 1941, 145. Persons employed, 1,374,000, an addition high; 17½ per cent rise since opening of 1941.

Exports—August, 1941, $148,000,000; August, 1940, $110,000,000.

Production Meat Packing Plants in Alberta—1940, $31,357,000, 1939, $22,645,000.

WELFARE OF CITY

Members will understand it is impossible on this occasion to catalogue all the activities of the Chamber throughout the year, but this enumeration of these that follow will indicate the part the district your Council has had in the welfare of Edmonton and the great district which it serves.

Edmonton Highway—A committee has investigated this subject and has recommended to the Joint Defence Board the construction of the highway to Edmonton and extension at Kaitchewan. Mr. Chas. H. Grant, our delegate on the matter to Ottawa, strongly urged that Edmonton should be the route would not be settled without adequate study and consideration of the prairie route.

Mail Contracts—The Council has urged upon the Dominion government to give a share of appropriate war contracts to Edmonton and extension of flying training at Edmonton airport. At present a new doubleservice hangar is under construction and nearing completion.

Road to Coalspur: The Council has supported Edson and Coalspur in urging completion of a road joining the two settlements. This is now in progress and it is expected traffic will be possible by the early summer of 1942.

Restriction of Provincial Taxation: The Council has urged upon the provincial government ... to curtail taxation and expenditure in order to assist in effective prosecution of the war and to exercise closer control over demands upon the public.

ROWELL-SIROIS REPORT

It will be gratifying to the members of the chamber that the Rowell-Sirois report on taxation has concurred in and adopted the chamber's representations.

A questionnaire, prepared by the Finance Committee of Commerce, has been studied by a Committee and by Council, and many valuable suggestions have been advanced that will be presented to the Chamber in its negotiations with the government in implementing the recommendations of the Committee.

Real Estate Taxation: Real estate taxation has engaged the attention of council on several occasions. It was raised by a report of the Committee of Finance of Commerce to the effect that the tax burden on real estate should be adjusted and lightened, as the value of land had not been retarded and depreciated through the incidence of excessive real estate taxation.

Freight Rates: In view of the comment in the Rowell-Sirois report on this subject, the Council has asked the Alberta Board of Trade and Associated Boards of Commerce to study and prepare a brief thereon for the member boards, with a view to future action.

Edmonton Agent at Jasper to Attract Tourists: Representations have been made from various sources for the Chamber to maintain an agent at Jasper in connection with catering to that point via the Banff-Jasper Highway. In the opinion of your council, this is hardly profitable now till the highway from Jasper to Edmonton is all paved.

TRANSFER OF TAXES

Transfer of Income and Corporation Taxes: The Chamber has supported the proposal of the Minister of finance to the provinces that in return for adequate compensation they vacate the personal and corporation tax fields for the duration of the war.

Royal Canadian Air Force Queries to Edmonton: The Council advised and supported the taking part of the Edmonton Exhibition grounds by the Royal Canadian Air Force after the Summer Fair as one of the contributions of Edmonton to Canada's war effort, and have strongly opposed moving any of the Air Force to other points for training. Edmonton has the facilities and should stay.

Through the generosity of Superintendent J. M. MacArthur, N.A.R.; J. Ivan MacKay, C.P.R., and J. H. McKinnon, C.N.R., officers of the Chamber have been privileged to visit the boards of trade of Red Deer, Lacombe, Grande Prairie, Peace River, St. Paul, Lloydminster and other points and exchange friendly greetings and lay the basis for organization and co-operation in general board of trade work.

Conserving Gasoline. The chamber has endorsed and is giving practical support to Premier Aberhart's Coltrelle in his efforts to conserve gasoline as a meritorious war objective.

Buy Something British Week: This effort is sponsored by the chamber, through the retail section.

PAYS TRIBUTE

As president of the chamber, I want to take this opportunity to pay a deserved tribute to the chairmen of the various committees and the members thereof. They are all specialists in their respective roles and have rendered well-considered advice on the matters referred to them, which has been very helpful to council in the multitude of its deliberations.

Cross Section Of Free World Sails Away To Wars . . . . British War Cabinet Poses In London

Children Of England

Group of toddlers, innocent victims of war, go about childish routine at British nursery centre in the "suburbs." Centre cares for youngsters whose parents are either war casualties or engaged in armed forces or volunteer duties.

Members of the British war cabinet, summoned to a meeting at No. 10 Downing Street, official residence of Prime Minister Winston Churchill, posed for this photo before going into conference on war problems. Seated, left to right, Sir John Anderson, lord president of the council; Prime Minister Churchill; Clement Attlee, lord privy seal; Anthony Eden, foreign secretary. Standing, left to right, Arthur Greenwood, minister without portfolio; Ernest Bevin, minister of labor; Lord Beaverbrook, minister of production, and S. Kingsley Wood, chancellor of the exchequer.

While visiting the southeast air corps training centre recently, Air Marshal A. R. Garrod, head of Royal Air Force training for the British Empire, got right down "on the line" to chat with English cadets more than 3,000 miles from home. Here at the air corps basic flying school, at Gunter Field, Alabama, where hundreds of Britons are being trained, he leaves his official delegation long enough to talk things over with Cadet F. H. Maywhort, of Congleton, Cheshire.

Women Dig Trenches

This picture of part of Russia's citizen army came from Leningrad via London. It shows women of Russia's second city plying spades to erect barricades and dig trenches for the defence of Leningrad which still holds out against the Nazis.

Saves Matches

Cigarette lighters use petrol (as they say in England), and matches burn sulphur. Both are needed for defence. Therefore this young lady of the Women's Air Auxiliary Force (W.A.A.F.) lights her cigarette from a gas jet which burns from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. at Newcastle. It has been found to be economical.

Under Two Flags

The Stars and Stripes and the Union Jack of Great Britain pass in review before Air Marshal Garrod of R.A.F. during color guard review of R.A.F. student pilots now undergoing training at Montgomery, Ala., air base.

Named Attache

Newly appointed air attache at the Canadian legation, Washington, Air Commodore Walsh, M.B.E., commanded R.C.A.F. formations overseas until last spring when he was named Air O.C. No. 5 Training Command H.Q. in Montreal.

New Lord Mayor

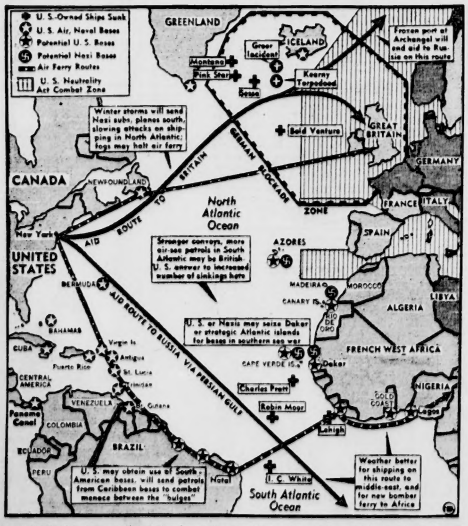
Sea Battle Also Going South For The Winter



As on land, the war on the water is moving south for the winter. Sinking of the American flag freighter Lehigh off Africa reveals U-boats are increasing operations in the South Atlantic, although Kearny and Bold Venture incidents indicate Nazis are still striking in the north. Map spots sinkings of U.S.-owned ships in the Atlantic and strategy of the winter war at sea

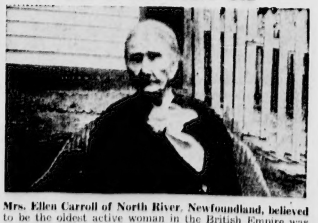
Salome Fun

There may be those who think this a good idea. At Chelsea, England fair a man wearing a mask of Winston Churchill characterizes Salome going into her dance and carrying the head of a well-known dictator.

She Is 114 Years Old



Mrs. Ellen Carroll of North River, Newfoundland, believed to be the oldest active woman in the British Empire was 114 years old on Oct. 20. She lives with her youngest daughter, Mrs. Ellen O'Brien, 68. Her oldest living son is James Carroll, 92, Santa Monica, Calif. Mrs. Carroll knits and sews, but eyesight and hearing are beginning to fail.

Daughters Who Dare

By Rob Eden

JUNE RANDOLPH is trying to help her brother, EDDIE, after he is released from prison, where he served time for passing a bad cheque. June's father refused to help Eddie and forbids her even seeing him. However, she lets Eddie use his car. Later she finds stolen jewels in her car and buries them. She is engaged to ROY LAUGHLIN, but is becoming interested in TED HAMEL, whom she has met recently. June is convinced Eddie didn't steal the jewels after talking with him in the apartment of his fiancee, DOLLY DARVIS, dance instructor. Ted has taken her from a club dance to talk with Eddie. Ted returns her to the club and Roy, not knowing where she has been, takes her home, where they find all the lights on. Inside they find policemen. June's car has been stolen by marked thieves. Although June thinks they were of Mugsy Barker's followers, he forces them to return with him to tell their story to Mugsy. He refuses to believe the story and gives June and Eddie a week to produce the jewels. June returns home to meet her father who tells her he is taking her and BOB to see the house he plans to buy for them. Next day, while she is out, June gets a call from the district attorney's office.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

If June had an idea—which she very definitely did—that she would go to the district attorney's office alone, she was to be disappointed.

"I'll just run down and see what Mr. Davidson has to say," she told her father, as casually as she could.

"And I'll go with you," he answered. "There's nothing so important at the plant that I can't get away."

"But, Dad, it's entirely unnecessary," June insisted, trying to keep the desperation out of her voice. "It can't be anything but some trivial matter. It's probably about my car. I won't mind in the least going by myself."

"If Roy were here—" Randolph hesitated.

"I'll call him and have him meet me there." June eagerly accepted the suggestion. "After all he is a lawyer, my lawyer, and it probably would be better to have someone like that with me when I see the legal gentlemen."

"Good idea," her father agreed, and she breathed easier.

But when she came out of her room, ready for downtown it was to find Randolph waiting for her.

"Why, I thought you'd gone, Dad?"

"I was half way out the door when I suddenly remembered that Roy had phoned to say that he'd be tied up in court. So I'll have to go after all . . ."

"It isn't necessary, at all. I can take care of myself."

DAD GOES TOO

"I'd feel better, though, if you had someone with you. So I'll go along, too."

June kept up a running fire of conversation all the way to town—trivial chatter about unimportant matters, anything to keep from thinking what was before her. Then, too, she wanted to keep her father from asking questions.

They had taken Randolph's car, and he kept his eyes on the road as he drove carefully into the city.

"When we get through, you can drive me to the plant," he said. "Mulleny can come after me in the big car at the usual time."

"I'll remember to tell him," the girl responded.

It seemed to her, despite the moderate pace at which her father drove, that they were approaching town at breakneck speed. Almost before she realized it he had pulled into a parking lot near the court house and the two of them were walking into the big stone building.

June clung to a faint hope that Mr. Davidson wouldn't be in his office; that he might have been called to court and they would have to come back again. But she again was disappointed. Mr. Davidson was in, and his efficient-appearing secretary invited them into his private office a few seconds after she had announced them.

NOT CRIMINAL

"I don't believe I've met you before, Mr. Davidson," Randolph said, extending his hand. "I don't go in for politics and the only business I've had with the courts has been in the civil branch, not the criminal."

Joseph Davidson, a tall, thin man with a high forehead and an unruly mop of hair which kept dropping down over it, half obscuring his right eye, smiled rather coldly as he shook hands with Randolph.

"This is my daughter, June Randolph, whom you wanted to see."

"Oh, yes, how do you do, Miss Randolph," the assistant district attorney murmured. "Won't you sit down, please?" My business is with Miss Randolph, in case you would like to retire," he added, looking at the girl's father. His eyes were dark and piercing and June had a fleeting impression of someone peering through a bridge as his hair slid down again over his forehead, and was tossed impatiently back.

NO SECRETS

"My daughter and I have no secrets from each other, Mr. Davidson," Randolph answered, a bit stiffly. "Whatever you have to say to her can be said in my presence."

"Just as you wish." Davidson tilted back in his swivel chair, his long thin fingers pressed together as he struck a half-judicial pose.

"If it's about her car that was stolen, I'm sure we don't care to prosecute, now that it's been recovered."

"It's not about the car, Mr. Randolph." He directed his gaze at June. "What I called you down here for, Miss Randolph," he said, "is to ask you why you went to Mugsy Barker's hotel apartment last night with your brother."

June gulped, nervously. It was worse than she had anticipated. She might have explained away the finding and hiding of the jewels, but this was something that caught her absolutely off guard. She could hear her father stiffen in his chair close to her.

"I—er—"

"Also, I want to know where Eddie Randolph is. We've been unable to find him. He gave our man the slip last night after he left you in your car."

FOLLOWED

So that was it. They had been followed from Barker's place last night, not by one of his gang but by a detective from the district attorney's office.

"What is this?" Randolph demanded.

"Please answer my questions, Miss Randolph," Davidson ordered, ignoring Randolph.

THREATENED EDDIE

"I—we went there because—because this Barker threatened Eddie," she said, at last.

"What hold has he on your brother that any threats he could make would induce Eddie to break his parole and go to his hotel?"

"I—I don't know, sir, but he threatened him and—and I went with Eddie to try to persuade him to let Eddie alone. Eddie is a good boy, Mr. Davidson. He's trying so hard to go straight, but these—these crooks won't let him alone."

"Why didn't you come to us, then, if Mugsy was threatening your brother?"

"I—I—I did think of going to the police, but Eddie thought it better to have it out with Barker." June went on, wildly, scarcely realizing what she was saying in her panic.

"What has Eddie done that Barker could threaten him?"

"Nothing—that is—nothing, that's what I mean. Barker is just persecuting him."

CLEAN BREAST OF IT

For a moment June considered making a clean breast of the whole matter about the jewels. Of how she had found them, how she had suspected Eddie might have been involved. How she tried to protect him by hiding them. But a glance at the stern face of the man across the desk dissuaded her. She felt she could expect no understanding from him. He, too, would think Eddie must have had something to do with the jewels. It was too much of a coincidence that her car, of all cars, would have been chosen by accident by the Tracy thieves in which to conceal their loot.

"Wouldn't it be better if you told me the truth, Miss Randolph?" the official's question shot at her like a dart.

"I have told you all I know," she answered.

"All you intend to tell, you mean. Where is your brother?"

"I don't know. He never told me where he is living, and I never asked."

Davidson's hands gestured, despairingly.

"All right, if you don't want to co-operate, we'll have to use our own methods. That will be all."

June was trembling as her father seized her shoulder and turned her around to face him when they reached the outside corridor.

"Is that true—have you been seeing Eddie? Did the two of you go to this gangster's place?" Randolph demanded angrily.

"Yes, Dad, it's true," June answered, in a small voice.

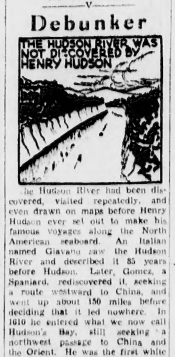
Debunker



The Hudson River had been discovered, visited repeatedly, and even drawn on maps before Henry Hudson ever set out to make his famous voyages along the North American seaboard. An Italian named Giovanni came the Hudson River and described it 85 years before Hudson. Later, Gomez, a Spaniard, rediscovered it, seeking a route westward to China, and went up about 150 miles before deciding that it led nowhere. In 1610 he entered what we now call Hudson's Bay, still seeking a northwest passage to China and the Orient. He was the first white European to explore the Hudson River, but was not the discoverer.

War Debts Can Never Be Paid Aberhart Says

WINNIPEG, Oct. 30— (CP)— Premier Aberhart of Alberta, president of the newly-formed Democratic Monetary Reform Organization of Canada, Wednesday night told the final session of the new movement's national convention here that Canada will never pay back the money borrowed to finance the war.

Mr. Aberhart, who was elected leader of the organization earlier yesterday said that before the First Great War, Canada's debt totalled, in round figures, $544,000,000.

"Before the war of 1939, Canada's debt was $4,026,000,000.

"Before the war of 1914, the debt of the United States totalled $1,188,000,000. Before the war of 1939, the United States' debt was $42,968,300,000.

WILL INCREASE

Before the war of 1914, Great Britain's debt totalled $3,330,000,000. Before the war of 1939, the British debt was $57,500,000,000.

"Will debt in the next 25 years show the same increase as in the last 25 years?" asked Mr. Aberhart. "It will be more."

The Alberta premier said his government "has done everything in its power to help the all-out war effort." Alberta treasury funds had been used to buy "more than $1,000,000 worth of war bonds."

"I am not ashamed of what we have done in the war effort. If I were permitted to do what I know could be done, I would do much more."

"Suicide Squads" Of Reds In Odessa

LONDON, Oct. 30—(CP)—London morning newspapers today published Stockholm reports that "suicide squads" of Russians are remaining in Axis-occupied Odessa and waging underground warfare against the Rumanians in catacombs beneath the city.

Quoting a neutral journalist who visited the city, the reports said that when the Russians evacuated Odessa the squads stayed behind in civilian clothes. Operating from a maze of tunnels beneath the city, the guerillas spread terror among the occupying troops and destroyed buildings still standing with land mines and incendiary grenades.

VANCOUVER, Oct. 30—(CP)—A new mercury discovery in the Tatla Lake district of British Columbia which has aroused such interest that the country has been staked for miles around, is being investigated by Bralorne Mines, Limited, company officials said Wednesday. The company has an engineer in the field carrying out investigations.

The discovery is credited to George Snell, a Vanderhoof, B.C., miner. It is located on Silver Creek about 20 miles north of Tatla Lake in the central interior of the province, directly north of Vancouver.

The BBC in an announcement heard by the CBS said the instructional broadcast would be made in nine languages, French, Norwegian, Netherlands, Flemish, Polish, Czech, Greek, Serbo-Croat and German.

Gen. Charles De Gaulle, Free French leader, has called on his countrymen for the protest strike.

Italians Carry Travelling Bags: Expect Capture

CAIRO, Oct. 30—(CP)—So many Italian airmen have been captured in the western desert that some of them have begin to carry "travelling bags" with them when they take the air.

Cameras Banned By Government In Restricted Areas

OTTAWA, Oct. 30—(CP)—Cameras will in future be prohibited in areas where war restrictions are already applied to photography, it is announced in a special edition of the Canada Gazette publishing a new order-in-council.

Since shortly after the outbreak of war photography has been prohibited in designated areas, such as war industries, power plants and canals. The new order-in-council extends the restrictions and provides authority for uniformed officers to seize any photographic equipment found in a restricted area.

The only exception is for persons who have a written permit from "a competent authority," appointed at the minister of justice or the minister of national defence.

Conscription Decision Said Up To People

TORONTO, Oct. 30. — (CP)— Hon. R. B. Hanson, Conservative house leader, told members of his party in a luncheon address yesterday that conscription of manpower for overseas service must be brought about by the force of public opinion rather than through its advocacy by the Conservative Party.

Mr. Hanson referred to his recent trip to Great Britain and said the raising of a larger Canadian army is needed.

"I have been urged to declare for conscription of manpower," Mr. Hanson said. "What would happen if I did? Immediately the Conservative party in parliament nailed conscription to its masthead, we'd consolidate all those forces that have been opposed to us since 1917 and they would be marshalled against us.

"Conscription is bound to come to the front more and more insistently—but it must come from the people themselves. To make it a political move would defeat the very purpose of those who would have it in view.

"Some will disagree with this view. I have studied it from every angle. If it were put to a plebiscite I don't know what would happen. I wish you could see the letters I have received—letters from mothers who say they didn't raise their boy to be a soldier."

Contempt Of Court Brings Jail Term

Apostles Dimitrious Micas, operating La Lorraine Sweets, St. Denis St., Montreal, was sentenced on October 22nd by Justice Angers in the Exchequer Court of Canada, to fifteen days in the common jail and compelled to pay costs for persisting in passing off a substitute product on calls for "Coca-Cola" in the face of a court order which the owner of that trade mark had obtained perpetually restraining Micas from engaging in such practices.

The Defendant, Micas, was first brought before the Court for substituting the goods of another on calls for "Coca-Cola" in April, 1940, at which time the Plaintiff Company obtained a permanent injunction perpetually restraining the Defendant from passing off the goods of another on calls for its product.

However, on several occasions following the granting of the injunction it was found that the La Lorraine Sweets persisted in passing off substitute goods when asked for "Coca-Cola". As a result the Plaintiff Company in May, 1941, moved to commit the Defendant to jail for violation of its permanent injunction. On October 22nd, 1941, said Motion was granted and Micas was given a jail sentence and required to pay the Plaintiff's costs.

Baruch succeeds Emery C. Olson of Los Angeles, Calif., and took office during the 33rd annual convention of the organization here.

Charles H. Bland, Chairman of the civil service commission, Ottawa, was elected to fill Baruch's place on the executive council.

Czechs Eager To Fight Germans

TORONTO, Oct. 30 — Colonel Cenek Hutnik and Wing-Commander Jan Ambrus from the Czechoslovak military mission of the Czechoslovak army fighting with the British forces have returned from Batawa, Ont., the new development of the Bata Shoe Company of Canada, where they made an appeal to the Czechoslovak subjects to volunteer for the Czechoslovak army in England.

This challenge to the patriotism of the men who saw Hitler's hordes marching through Czechoslovakia in spring, 1939, found a response not exceeded amongst the Czechoslovak population of the North American continent. All men having the necessary qualifications volunteered. Some of them have an excellent military training from their own country as fighting pilots or tank drivers, and will be a valuable asset to the Czechoslovak forces fighting with the British, according to the officers.

A great many of them are already engaged in the production of war munitions, and their offer to enlist may be accepted only after careful consideration of their usefulness by the Canadian government; but others will be able to throw their weight into the job of fighting Hitler directly with arms.

Egypt's Problem

CAIRO, Oct. 30—(AP)—King Farouk, Wednesday presided at a cabinet meeting called to discuss Egypt's wartime domestic troubles, chiefly the high cost of living. Egypt's living costs have risen 43 per cent since Jan. 1 and 55 per cent since the war began.

Duchess Buys Duke Four Neckties, $6

NEW YORK, Oct. 30—(AP)—If you run into the Duke of Windsor during the Christmas holidays and he's wearing one of those "thumbs up" neckties, don't feel too badly about your own—his only cost $1.50.

The Duchess slipped out for a little shopping trip Wednesday and out of a total expenditure of $150 for Christmas gifts purchased at the British War Relief Society spent $6 on the Duke—four $1.50 cravats.

She has to account to the British exchange control for every cent of it, she said later in her suite at the Waldorf-Asioria hotel, just like any other British subject making foreign purchases in war time.

"We make a list of how we spend our money," the Duchess volunteered during a press interview. "When we got permission to leave the island we were allowed so much money."

Last night the Duke, after touring the navy yard in Brooklyn and realizing a bit, left by train to visit Detroit defence plants.

LONDON, Oct. 30—(CP)—A giant Catalina flying boat, built in the United States, has just completed the first non-stop flight from Fiji to Sydney, a distance of 2,000 miles, the British Broadcasting Corporation reported Wednesday night.

The flying boat, described by the BBC as "one of many to join the Australian Air Force without a single accident," was being ferried from the United States.

14 Lose Lives In Plane Crash

By WALLACE MITCHELL

MOORHEAD, Minn., Oct. 30—(BUP)—Fourteen persons were killed early today when a Northwest Airlines transport plane, landing in the dark on a broad, flat northwestern Minnesota prairie, struck a ravine and burned.

The dead were 12 passengers, the co-pilot and a stewardess. The pilot, Capt. C. Bates, escaped from the flames, which enveloped the plane after it plunged across the ravine, either because he was able to crawl through an emergency exit or because he was thrown clear of the wreckage.

All of the victims were Americans.

Four hours after the crash rescuers had removed eight bodies from the charred wreckage. All were burned badly, and only one could be identified. He was E. A. King, Fargo, N.D., president of the Dakota Tractor and Equipment Co.

Airline officials could not tell immediately if the pilot was making a forced landing on the field or if he mistook it for the Fargo airport, where he was scheduled to land, three miles away.
